- the 1955 razorback is a chronicle of one of the memorable years of our lives . . . for many of us it was a year of beginning, with new sights, new faces, and a new way of life . . . for others it was a year of ending, with our name finally engraved on senior walk . . . this book is an attempt to recapture the spirit . . . a spirit that is warm and alive and such an integral part of the best years of our lives . . . our college years . . . significant years . . . the story is here, in this . . .

old main . . . traditional and symbolic . . . high walls and ivy and age-darkened brick . . . a static point on a changing campus and a rather paradoxical tribute to our short, temporal lives here at the university . . .

Old Main, a tradition in itself and one of the state's historic landmarks, occupies the crest of University Hill.

Dickson Street is the main street of the University community.

Then

there is the long walk up the hill . . . under trees that provide an aisle of shade during spring and early fall . . . trees that direct the piercing wind straight through the diligent student in winter . . . and the student worries about today's classes and thinks little about those of tomorrow and damns the wind and vaguely realizes the great responsibility that is soon to come . . .

gaebale 50

It was a warm day in early September when the first of the cars from all over the state began to arrive in Fayetteville. Most students moved quickly into their house or hall and then went in search of friends they hadn't seen for the several months of summer vacation. Others quietly arranged their rooms and prepared for the coming semester.

"Moving in" was the usual disorganized necessity.

the frustrating hours...

The end of the line brought sighs of relief.

The long wait for class cards.

The crowd outside of the Field House jostled and squirmed . . . the lines moved lazily toward the doors . . . and each student waited impatiently to add his own personal confusion to the chaos inside.

the light prologue

Most of the freshmen and transfer students attended the extras of Orientation Week . . . the guided tours, the mixer in the Union, the programs at the Greek Theatre. ODK supervised the presentation of skits by the sorority pledges, and speakers from various honor societies on the campus told the freshmen how important it is to study.

AWS had a picnic for the freshman girls.

Mr. Cross outlined education requirements for new students.

The Zeta pledges entertained the freshmen with an exhibition of some of the finer things of college life.

Freshmen were shown through the Engineering Building.

A more serious side of Orientation was the series of proficiency tests in the U-Ark Bowl.

The second week of September was a week of preparation for everyone. The proficiency tests were complicated, but not completely impossible. The lectures on scholarship were interesting, but maybe it was too early in the year . . . even the faculty seemed more interested in the skits by the sorority pledges.

Carol Lynn Lackey decided to beat the line in purchasing her school supplies.

John Rockwell tried to accustom himself to the library.

Martha Mann made good use of the Holcombe study hours.

the beginning of the struggle

It was difficult at first, after three months of no eight o'clocks and nights spent at the movies instead of the library, but the classes and books and nights of study gradually became familiar again. Even so, it took several days and numerous trips to the bookstore to acquire even the minimum amount of the lab manuals, the texts, the theme paper, the economic outline maps, and other ridiculous paraphernalia that professors believe to be so absolutely necessary for their courses.

The Coffee Club held regular meetings in the Union.

During free periods the engineers met on the steps of the Engine Building and played with their slide rules.

A large crowd of students saw the Tulsa game and first Razorback victory of the season.

Coach Wyatt gets a quick word with the spotter.

Maybe every university has a season that seems impossible upon reflection . . . team that surpasses all pre-season expectations, beautiful, mild Saturday afternoons, and a spirit that builds into a frenzy by weekends. It seemed only natural to live from Saturday to Saturday, and no one could quite understand the professors who were worried about a recession and risks and risk bearing and the things professors always worry about.

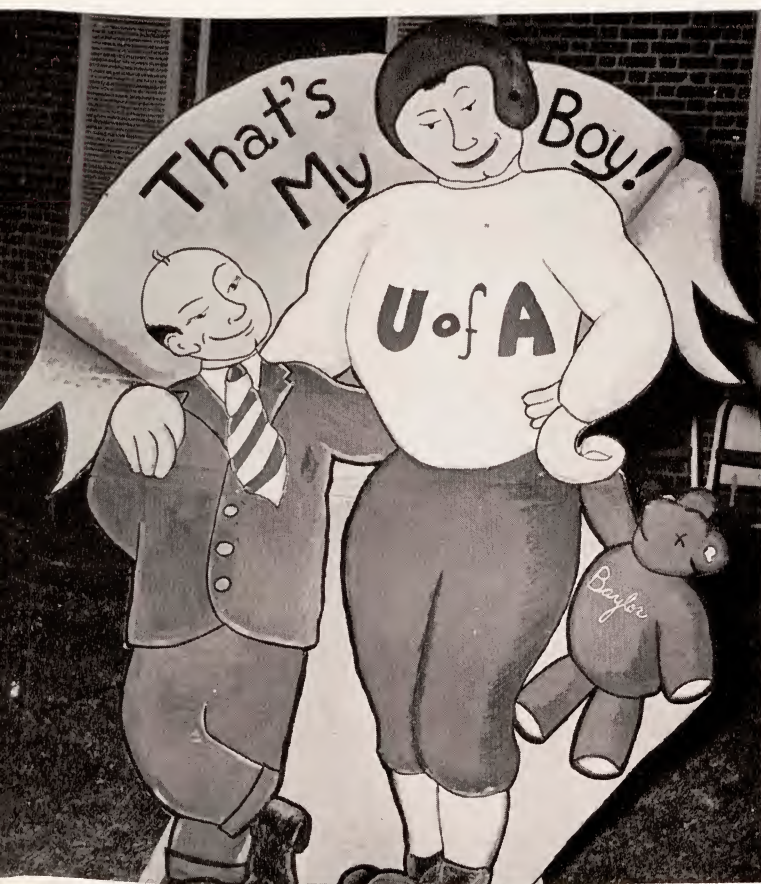

The team received a noisy welcome home after the TCU game.

Spirits were high when Arkansas played in Fort Worth.

Everyone was glad to claim the 1954 Razorback team.

Coach Wyatt and President Caldwell discuss the potentialities of the draw series after the Tulsa game.

the scramble to the top

It was altogether an unusual season. The sororities even decorated their lawns for games that were played out of the state. Spontaneous motorcades with blaring horns would thread their way around the campus until the small hours of the morning. Of course, there was some criticism because most of the students cut their morning classes to pick up tickets for Saturday's game. But after all . . . it was altogether an unusual season.

This was a good year for cheerleaders. Students would stand in line for hours for a tickets, and then at the game they would set down only for the half-time activities. The yells all began well enough; however, they were lost before completion in the roar that accompanied any action on the playing field. But no one really cared.

An impromptu pep rally developed when the team left for TCU.

the tumult and the shouting . . .

A group of fans flew to Austin in a chartered plane.

A tremendous reception was given the team after the Texas victory.

These were some of the best days of our lives. The days when the curious fascination of football pushed everything else into the background.

the short weekends

This was a good year. The listening parties in the fall . . . the house parties and formals . . . the picnics in the spring. It was an opportunity to capture a great deal of stereotyped college life . . . an opportunity that was not neglected.

The Tri-Delts entertained the football team with a buffet dinner.

"Quo Vadis" was an appropriate name for the PiKA costume party.

Arkansas scores! Listening parties all over the campus offered unrestrained vocal approval.

The Phi Deltas put on their best bib and tucker for their half formal.

Scarlett O'Hara and Rhett Butler delighted the Delta Gammas and their dates as they argued over the price of cotton in Atlanta.

It has been said that parties make the world go 'round and it is an established fact in spite of strict rules and regulations concerning date call and sobriety . . . it all goes to prove that a girl doesn't have to drink or smoke to have a good time.

The Student Union Ballroom mirror reflected the Lambda Chi Christmas formal.

Not even overcoats for our underpaid and overworked administrators.

Gwynn Cochran told Santa how she had been a good little girl all year.

if winter comes...

December brought snow to Fayetteville, catching some of us without our overcoats and mittens, and others of us had to relearn the lost childhood art of dodging a flying snowball. As usual the Christmas parties seemed a bit pre-mature, and in order to convince us that it was the yuletide season, Saint Nick had to leave the North Pole and come to see his Arkansas kiddies early.

Just the right touch of ornaments, tinsel, bright lights, and Pi Phis . . .

Snowball warfare hasn't progressed much in the last seven hundred years . . . even the girls at Holcombe learned to master the game.

An added attraction to the Singfony was the Lyric Chorale singing "The Snow."

Delta Gamma won the women's division for "Jingle Bells" and "Snow Legend."

singing in the union...

The fourth annual Singfony netted three hundred dollars to be given by the Civic Club to the local Goodfellows Club for charity work. The Union was full of people, the air was full of music, and the coffers were full of money for Christmas goodies.

Sigma Nu sang its way to first place with "There Is Nothing Like A Dame."

Ed Patterson, chairman of the Entertainment Committee, made last-minute arrangements with band-leader Tony Pastor.

The Porker Party crowd was fascinated by the attempts of some couples to mambo.

Bobby Proctor was presented with the annual "King Porker" award at a basketball game.

the varsity's fete...

The Porker Party is one of the outstanding all-school dances of the fall semester. It has become quite a significant social occasion. It is here that the "King Porker" award is made to the most popular football player of the season, and it has become customary for the editor of the Razorback to announce the selection of the Razorback beauties during this party. And then, too, some people just come to dance.

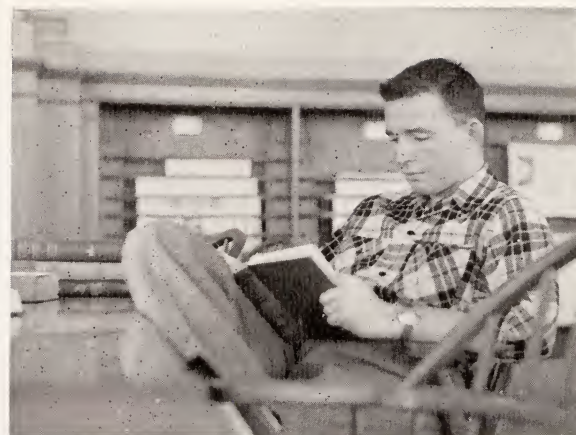

It's hard to imagine the stillness and quiet that creeps onto the campus during the Christmas holidays. The empty theatres, the lonely walks, the deserted classrooms . . . and the appalling silence on sorority row at date call.

Leaving for home . . . down the hill and over the mountain.

the pit of despair...

Sometimes even the fraternity test files couldn't supply all of the answers.

The library offered comparative silence during finals.

Finals meant a run on the library and the hurried scribbling of themes that should have been in weeks before. Some day we'll look back on such times and laugh . . . at least that's what they tell us.

after class...

During basketball season, dating is no problem at all. There are intramural games in the afternoon and varsity games several nights a week, and the Fieldhouse is within walking distance. But the season of the year mattered not at all to the snooker hounds, and the tables in the Union were full all year.

These people are part of the fifty million a day that are supposed to be enjoying the best.

To some people, though, there's just nothing like a good game of snooker.

The campus cop is your friend.

Some spectators arrived early and avoided the rush.

On Sunday mornings, even 10:45 seems a trifle early.

Early Sunday morning, and no one is up and about except the people that are baking bread and the ministers. The minister gives his sermon notes a final glance, braces himself with a cup of coffee, and then looks forward to the task of delivering a message to a congregation full of sleepy-eyed students in pink flannel trousers.

Pi Phi "wash that man right out of their hair" at the Engine Day Program.

A bronc buster provided entertainment for the crowd at the Agri Day celebration.

Preparations for Commerce Day were made by all of the happy millionaires-to-be.

the once-a-year days . . .

The business students jingled the change in their pockets and the engineers had prolonged slide-rule practice and recited the multiplication tables over and over. The time was drawing nigh for Commerce Day and Engineer's Day. Their days. It was understandably difficult for them to control their excitement, though it was rather hard on the cows when students began practicing up for Agri Day.

She laid 'em in the aisles.

Satchmo takes time to give autographs.

"... on Blueberry Hill."

satchmo in the fieldhouse

During the latter part of February the Entertainment Committee was treated like a subversive organization and the chairman of the committee was about as popular as the house manager in a sorority. The committee chairmanship had changed twice since the signing of the Louie Armstrong contract, and who could expect students to pay for a concert-only affair on Tuesday night, of all things. On Tuesday night (who ever heard of such a thing?) the Fieldhouse was filled to capacity, and the record audience kept Armstrong playing his trumpet and croaking songs until fifteen minutes past date call.

Dr. Calvin K. Stalnaker closed REW with an urge for the students to make these days something more than "... a passing of time."

The religious publications on sale in the Union received attention from many students.

so what...

Religious Emphasis Week was a combination of interesting speakers, inspiring speakers, and paper napkins printed in red. If the success of REW can be judged by the attendance, the week was well spent. The theme "So What?" attracted comment from all over the state and is evidently not the attitude of the majority of students at Arkansas.

Students took time out from studies and homework to attend the evening seminars.

The University's new switchboard system was received with skepticism.

Dean McMillan was usually busy with confused students during registration.

There's nothing like a good, healthy wait.

the lines at semester . . .

Semester registration is almost as bad as that in the fall . . . almost, but not quite. There is absent the great wail of anguish that is constant and such a distinguishing mark of Fieldhouse registration. Substituted is a great ignorance on the part of the registration assistants. "What do I do now?" "What do you do? Hell, how should I know? I just work here."

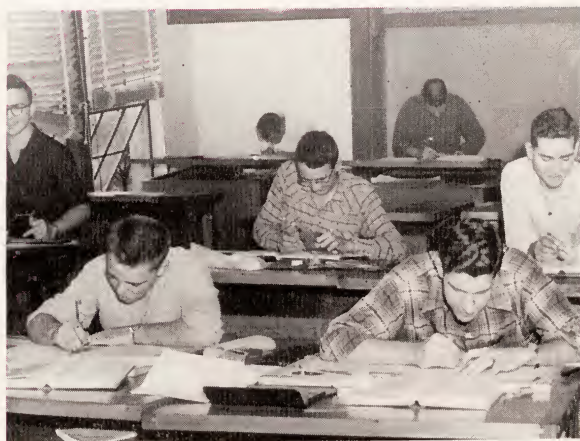

The two-hour drawing lab . . . the painstaking fine lines . . . the proper perspective . . . the mood, character, soft lead pencils, and charcoal . . . number ten brushes and India ink . . . "What it is?"

The business machines in the BA Building were available to the students for help in preparing assignments.

from one to five...

Tee-squares and triangles and eyestrain.

Trying to concentrate on chemistry during Friday afternoon labs was often a problem.

All too few students take advantage of the University Museum on the fourth floor of Old Main. The location alone is enough to frighten off the average student.

party, party...

There was all kinds of parties. A few cynics said that some were better than others, but whoever heard of a bad party? There were outings, costume . . . and of course a good Saturday blast was al- parties, formals, holiday parties, special parties ways in order. The only good thing about Monday morning to the serious-minded party-tie was that it served as the first step on the bridge to the next weekend.

The Tri-Delts ran in some home talent at their Blue Champagne Formal.

The Sigma Chis played "Spin-the-Bottle" at their Kiddy Party.

There was a short wait for breakfast after the Pi Phi formal.

Treet was one of the more pleasant characters at the Kappa Sig Hallowe'en Party.

Dior was not the style for the Sigma Nu Sadie Hawkins' Dance.

The costume parties seemed even more bizarre this year than ever before. The Kappa Sigs constructed a complete tunnel of horrors for their Hallowe'en party. The Lambda Chis remodeled the interior of their house in keeping with their Alphatraz party, and the PiKA Quo Vadis party gave the MGM spectacles a good run for the money. The parties were original . . . in a morbid way, perhaps, but after all . . . who knows what evil lurks in the hearts of men?

Hearts and flowers provided the theme and decorations for the SAE Valentine Party.

Christmas at the Sigma Nu house meant girls and presents and Santa Claus.

The roulette table at the Kappa Alpha Pigalle Party was busy all evening.

party, party...

The formals and outings and holiday parties were planned weeks and months in advance. The formals and parties seemed to last for such a short period of time for all of the work and preparation that was required. But the outings were different. No starch, no crinoline, no black shoes, bother nor fuss . . . even the housemothers had a good time.

The Pi Phis entertained their dates with an outing at Lake Weddington.

Tex Beneke and his band attended the PiKA reception before playing for the Dream Girl Formal in the U-ARK Bowl.

Hugh Kinkaid danced in the Sigma Nu and Zeta's elaborate production of "The Prince of Whales."

The Lambda Chi and Delta Gamma skit concerned sin and vice and other phases of jolly campus life.

fieldhouse follies...

There were 1,300 people in the Fieldhouse for the Campus Capers show. The groups that participated rehearsed their skits for the last time Friday afternoon, and then they made the final adjustments on their scenery and tended to the dozens of twelfth-hour incidentals.

This skit was all about the devil and hell and the PiKAs and Tri-Delts.

"If we can't have our Gaebale, we'll say good-bye to old John." The Kappa Sigs and ChiOs sang.

The Kappas and Sigma Chis painted scenery until curtain time.

Problems of scenery changes were worked out during dress rehearsal.

campus capers...

Campus Capers was the climax of the Campus Chest Drive sponsored by the University Civic Club. A contest to elect a Professor Snarf initiated the charity project. It was a rather controversial beginning to such a worthwhile undertaking; most of the faculty members were afraid they would be selected as the perfect example of Snarfism . . . the rest were afraid they wouldn't. Actually it was all pretty silly. Nobody pays any attention to professors anyway.

Aub Martin and Tony Boyett carried the banner for the incumbent Razorback Party. There were charges and counter-charges and most of the noon and evening meals at the organized houses were spent in listening to candidates outline the platform of their party. Even that old specter, The Parking Problem, was resurrected and turned loose on the students.

Bob Jenkins discussed the virtues of the Arkansas Party.

the wind in the willows...

The Razorback Party primary attracted a record turn-out despite rainy weather.

The Election Committee spent several hours counting the general election votes.

Candidates and loyal party workers crowded around the blackboard in the Union where the returns were posted. The Arkansas Party managed to capture a majority of the Senate seats.

on a saturday afternoon

There was even a festive nature about the Saturday cleanups on most weekends. Sometimes the cleanups turned up forgotten racers from the long dead Gaebale Derby, but such cases were rare. Usually it was just such things as sorority girls trying bravely to cook supper for their dates and them ending up at a Springdale restaurant because the biscuits burned.

The Phi Delt pledges donated a left-over Gae-bale racer to the Tri-Delt left-over racer collection.

A few Chi Omegas instructed their dates in the culinary arts.

The Zetas spent several busy evenings preparing the queen's float.

The Lambda Chi Alpha pledges were unable to escape spring cleaning.

The Sig Alphs, with the help of their dates, constructed a replica of Old Main in red and white tissue paper.

It seems virtually impossible that a reasonably attractive and presentable finished product could ever result from the confusion that surrounds the building of a float. Somewhere among the lost hammers and sprained thumbs and chicken wire there must be some degree of competency. How else could these creeping crepe monsters that comprise the Homecoming Parade evolve from chaos and little, if any, idea of how the float is to look in its finished state.

Charlie Cole kept the Clown tradition for Gaebale.

Freddie Martin and his Martinmen entertained the Gaebale concert crowd.

Brad Kidder found himself outnumbered in the Gaebale Varsity Show.

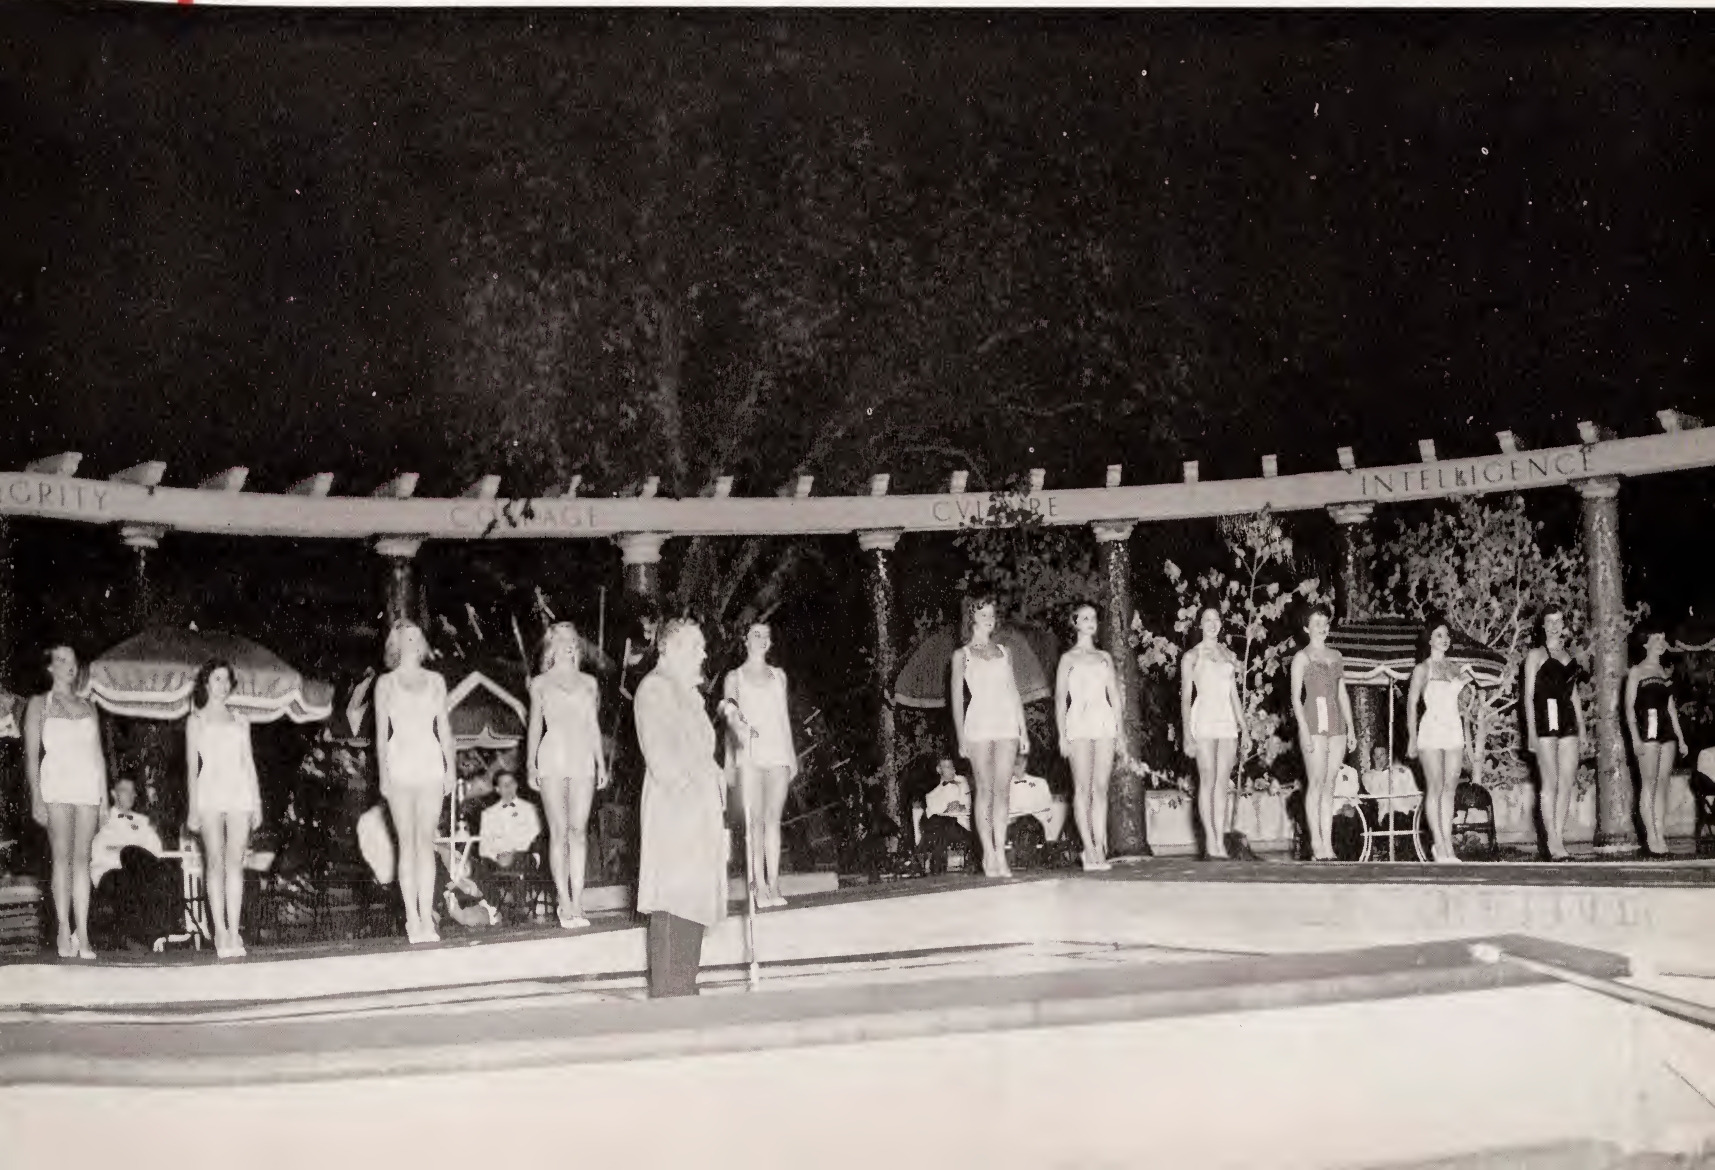

gaebale . . .

The visiting queens from other universities arrived . . . the Varsity Show cast had late afternoon rehearsals . . . the candidates for Miss University of Arkansas primped and polished and tried to gather a little more sun . . . and the campus began to put other things aside and move out of the academic rush.

The Varsity Show rehearsals became more and more frequent as Gaebale weekend neared.

The candidates for Miss University of Arkansas looked just as pretty wet as otherwise, and Bob Evans told jokes from THE RAZORBLADE to lighten the spirit of the crowd.

The midway was typically Gaebale. People bumping, crowding, laughing, pushing . . . all under the ceaseless din of patter from the loudspeakers.

The Gaebale clown's trampoline act was an added attraction on the midway.

The organized houses began constructing their midway booths early Saturday morning. A great quantity of cars was needed for each booth, since several trips to town for forgotten necessities seemed to be one of the requirements for participating. By some great miracle the booths were completed on time and the midway was opened in early afternoon.

. . . and they're off and running!

The Kappa dunking booth catered to the sadist element . . .

. . . while the KA Rat Races appealed to the sporting set.

"Throw a pie in a ChiO's eye!" Many gladly paid for the privilege.

spring sideshow . . .

Investigated, revised, and revived, Gaebale was still a colorful and fast-moving weekend. The Varsity Show, the Campus Fair, the concert, the beauty show, and the dance . . . and the work and planning was just as much a part of Gaebale as the major events. Even the three-day rain wasn't enough to dampen . . . or dilute . . . the spirits.

A loaf of bread, a jug of wine, and AWS . . . a picnic on the floor of the Student Union Ballroom. Members of AWS gathered for the annual awards, announcements, and the Mortar Board tapping ceremony.

Sue Shepherd was tapped for Mortar Board at the AWS meeting.

a moment of recognition...

Several members of Blue Key made plans for the chapter's activities during the spring semester.

Curtis Shipley assisted in the initiation of new members of Blue Key.

Omicron Delta Kappa tapped prospective members during the dinner hour, but Blue Key preferred to notify those who had received bids in the late hours of the night.

The robes for the graduation ceremonies were fitted.

The deans listened attentively to the speeches and advice to graduating students.

. . . and of course, the name on Senior Walk.

the final hours . . .

After four years . . . the last few weeks and days are caught up in the great rush to final exams and out the door to the summer vacation . . . but to some the door represents a beginning, and this year was not an end of a period of life, but a preface . . . and a promise . . .

President Caldwell and Governor Faubus participated in the graduation exercise.

Glad, yet sad . . . a moment of mixed emotions as the last speech is ended.

ORVAL E. FAUBUS
Governor of the State of Arkansas

governor orval e. faubus

Elected Governor of Arkansas in a hot campaign last summer, Orval E. Faubus made his first public appearance and speech on the campus last May. Governor Faubus was born and raised in nearby Madison County, educated in Arkansas and served in World War II.

After the war, he returned home to become editor-publisher of the Madison County Record, postmaster of Huntsville, and state highway director and administrative assistant to the governor under Sidney McMath. After McMath's term in office, Faubus returned to Madison County and was elected county clerk.

He is a member of the Baptist Church, the Masonic Lodge, and is a 32nd degree Mason.

Governor Faubus has visited the campus several times, and was in Fayetteville to crown the 1954 Homecoming Queen last fall.

Ten Arkansas citizens, appointed by the Governor and approved by the Senate, serve as the official policy-making bureau of the University. They are appointed to serve staggered terms of ten years each. Members of the 1954-55 Board of Trustees are Judge H. S. Yocum of El Dorado, chairman; Miss Pauline Holtzel, Lit-

in the president's chair...

The calendar on the desk of Dr. John T. Caldwell is crowded with engagements that give him almost a 24-hour working day as president of the University of Arkansas. His is no 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. job; his evenings are filled with speeches, social obligations, or catching up on work that piled up on his desk while out of town on University business. He must cram in an hour's relaxation with young Andy, Chuck and Alice Caldwell between an appointment with a university student and giving a welcoming address at a banquet of bankers or other groups. He has almost no time for other favorite recreations, swimming, tennis, and music.

The educated man should devote himself to the moral concepts of justice, honesty, and usefulness, Dr. Caldwell said in a commencement address at the University in June, 1952, when he was the newly-elected president. In the same address, he said that the educated man "will surely not violate the dignity of even the least person." Add a positive approach to problems to his personal devotion to these moral concepts and this warm feeling for people, and you have the essence of Dr. John T. Caldwell.

Dr. Caldwell, while still in school in Yazoo City, worked after school hours in a general store where he sold everything from cheese to horses' harness. He went to Mississippi State College, from which he received the B. S. degree in 1932.

For the next five years he taught social sciences and was band director at Holmes Junior College in Goodman, Miss., meanwhile working toward the A. M. degree, which he received from Duke University in 1936.

He was junior economist with the U. S. Resettlement Administration, with headquarters in Little Rock, in 1936 and 1937, then went to Princeton on a fellowship to study for the doctorate. When he received the Ph. D. degree from Princeton University in 1939 he didn't know it, but his schooling was not yet complete. He won another M. A. degree in 1945 from Columbia University, where he attended a naval school in military government.

There seems to be a western influence in the Caldwell Home.

Dr. Caldwell went to Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn., in 1939 as instructor of political science, and remained there until 1947. From 1942 until 1946, he was on military leave of absence. He was associate professor at Vanderbilt when he became president of Alabama College in Montevallo in 1947, a position he held until coming to Arkansas in 1952.

Dr. Caldwell's service in the field of education is not limited to Arkansas and its university. He serves on the Athletic Committee of the North Central Association of Schools; six committees of the Association of Land-Grant Colleges and Universities, including the important Advisory Panel on ROTC Affairs; the National Commission on Accrediting; the National Education Association; Southern Association of State Universities; national Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association, and the Film Council of America.

Last year Dr. Caldwell's service to education gained international scope. At the request of the Ministry of Education of Pakistan and the Ford Foundation he studied problems of higher education in Pakistan, then suggested improvements which might be made in the educational program.

Dr. Caldwell was granted a three and a half months' leave of absence from the University while he and Mrs. Caldwell went to Pakistan. The Board felt that it was an honor to the University to have its president selected to make the survey, and that the University and the state would profit from his experience.

JOHN TYLER CALDWELL
President of the University of Arkansas

T. C. CARLSON

LEWIS H. ROHRBAUGH

vice-president and treasurer

As Vice-President in charge of Finances, T. C. Carlson heads the Business Office of the University, which controls all finances of the University at Fayetteville, the School of Medicine, various state agricultural experiment stations, and the Agricultural Extension Service at Little Rock. His various activities include purchasing, budget control, receipt and disbursement of funds, accounting and financial reports, auditing, and supervision of the many business enterprises involved in operating the University.

The Business Office has grown since 1923, and is now a very large scale operation, handling the multi-million dollar budget of the University. Income is derived from many sources including student fees, appropriations made by the State Legislature, interest on endowments, and funds from the federal government.

vice-president and provost

In February, 1954, the Board of Trustees revamped the administrative set-up of the University and redefined the duties of provost. Under the new plan, the provost is second only to the president, with overall administrative responsibility for the academic and related divisions of the University.

Dr. Lewis H. Rohrbaugh, then with the American Council on Education in Washington, D. C., was the man chosen for the job. He assumed his duties in July, 1954, and succeeded the new law school dean, Joe Covington.

The new provost has had complete administrative charge over the colleges in Fayetteville, the registrar's office, the personnel deans, the library, health service, housing, food service, general extension service, and the athletic department. His work has also been with student government, ironing out difficulties and giving the go-word on student projects.

arts and sciences

Dean Guerdon D. Nichols is head of the "mother college" of the University. The College of Arts and Sciences was founded with the University and every graduate of Arkansas, whether he realizes it or not, has had several of his required courses in Arts and Sciences. Headquartered in the historic landmark, Old Main, the College of Arts and Sciences is the largest and encompasses the most varied fields of any of the colleges. The college offers bachelor degrees in arts, sciences, music, social welfare, architecture, and journalism.

agriculture and home economics

The College of Agriculture was one of the first major separations within the University. In 1874 agriculture was thought to be important enough to become a distinct division. It became a full-fledged college in 1892, and the Department of Home Economics joined the Agriculture College in 1914. It was previously in the College of Education. Dean Lippert S. Ellis holds a BS and PhD from the University of Wisconsin. A major part of the College of Agriculture is its research and extension education throughout the state.

business administration

After World War II, the College of Business Administration moved into its present location from the old Engineering Building, which had housed it since the 1920's. In earlier days, the college offered only a 2-year curriculum, with 2 years of pre-business in Arts and Sciences. In 1937, it became a college with a 4-year curriculum. Dean Paul W. Milam of Business Administration, a native of Arkansas, became head of the college in 1945. He has a BA degree from State College, Texas; MA from the University of Texas, and PhD from New York University.

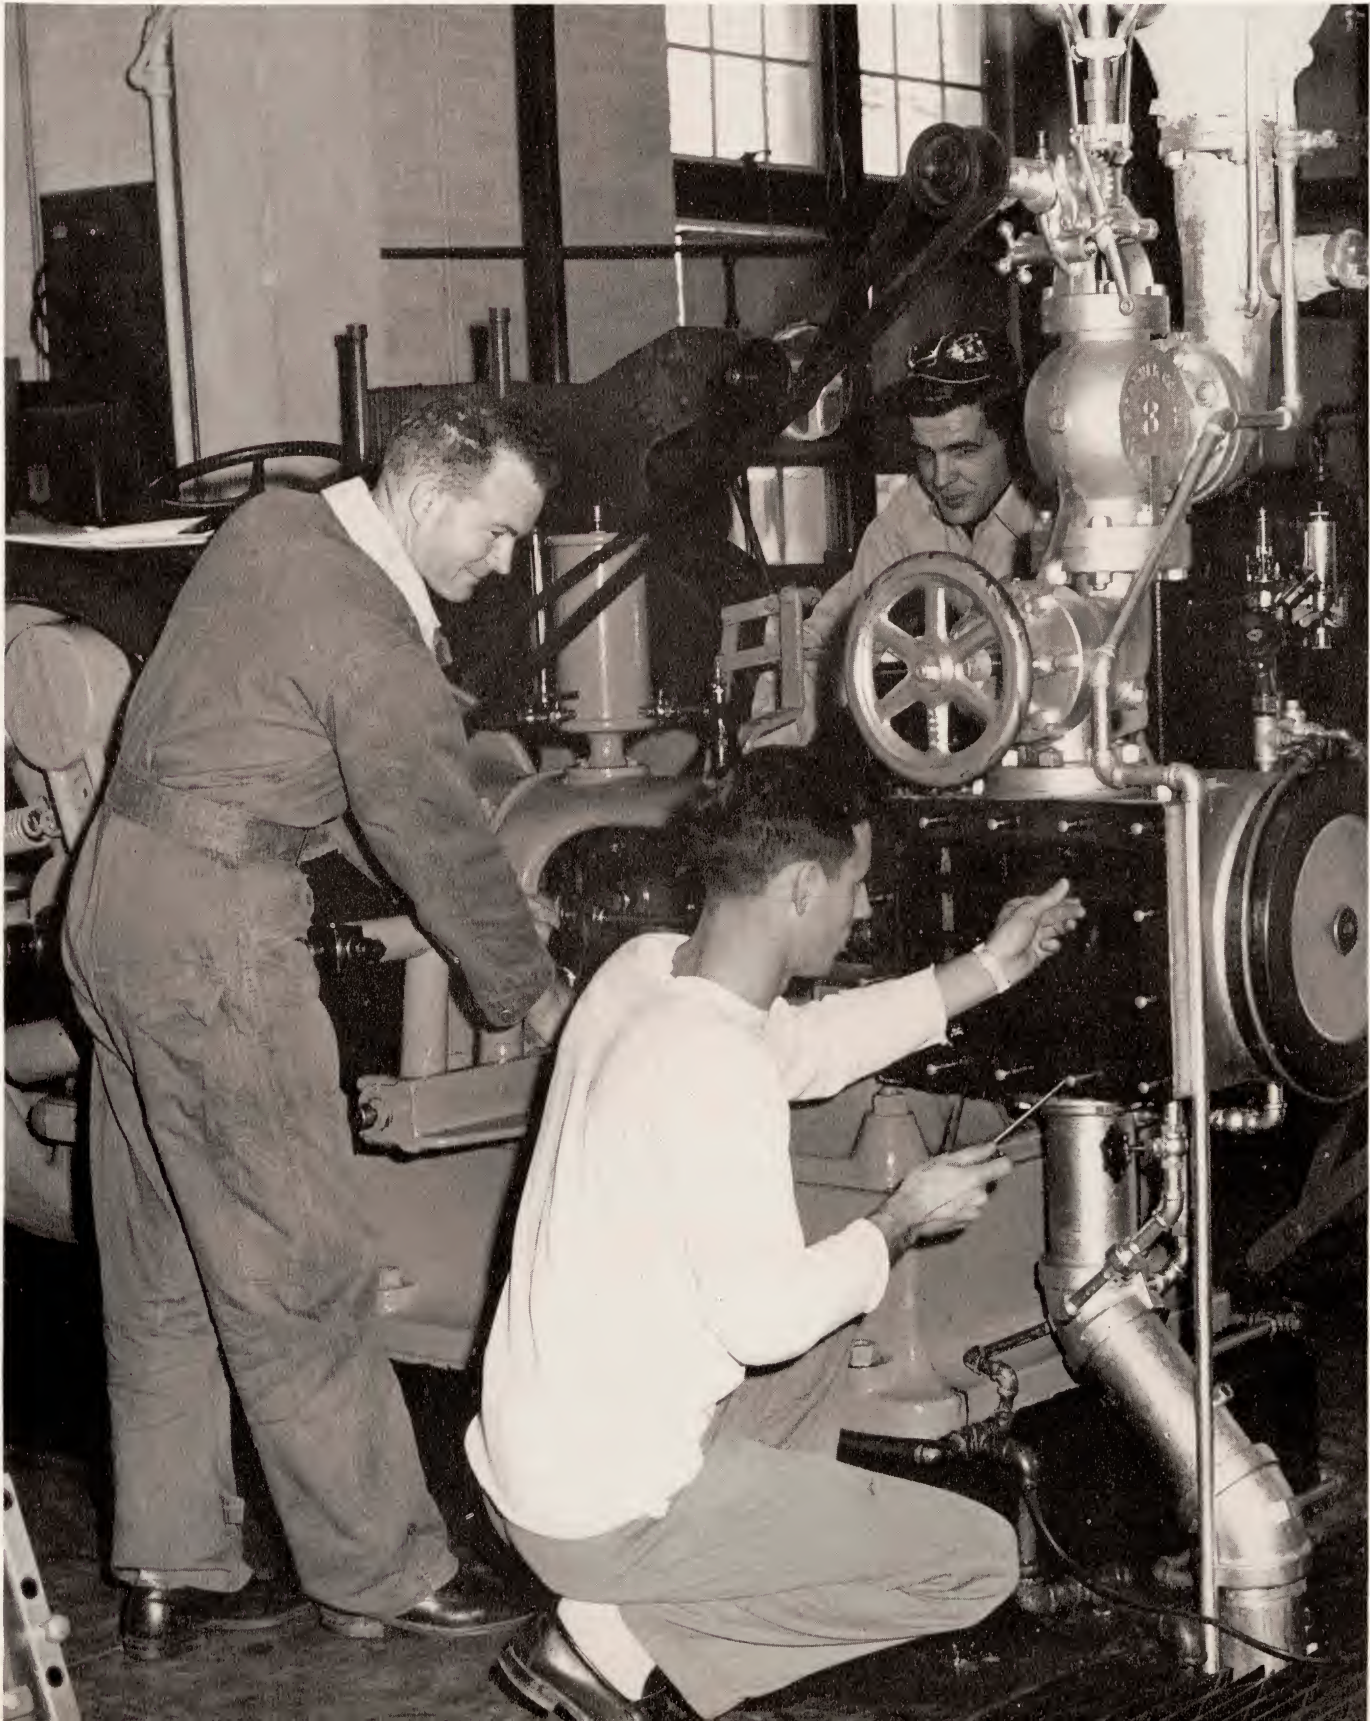

education

The College of Education is in three divisions: elementary and secondary, physical education, and vocational education. It was born with the University as a "normal department" to train teachers, and some practice teaching was done in the first session of the University. In 1913, the "normal" became the School of Education, and in 1916, it was promoted to the College of Education. Dr. William Jewell was the first dean, while the college is now headed by Dean Henry H. Kronenberg, engineering

Dean George F. Branigan moved to Arkansas from Iowa State to become the third Dean of Engineering in the 82 years of the University. The College of Engineering was first listed in the catalog in 1871 when the Morrill Act, establishing land grant colleges, stated that "mechanical arts" must be taught along with other subjects. One of the outstanding engineering schools in the nation, the University's College of Engineering has upheld the standards set by Dr. William Gladson, first dean.

graduate school

Since 1951 only, the University Graduate School has been conferring Doctor of Philosophy and Doctor of Education degrees. This school is unique in that it has no faculty of its own, but professors approved for graduate credit are selected from various departments. Graduate degrees were given for 40 years before the Graduate School was organized in 1927. Dr. John C. Jordan, previously dean of Arts and Sciences, became the dean. In 1948, he was succeeded by the present dean, Virgil W. Adkinson.

law school

Dean Joe E. Covington succeeded R. A. Leflar as dean in February, 1954, and at that time held both the office of Provost and Acting President in the absence of President Caldwell. J. S. Waterman, whose name the 1952 dedicated Law Building bears, was the first Dean of Law. Law School then was held in the basement of Old Main, and later moved to the now Psychology-Geography building. Dean Covington graduated from the University in 1932, received his Law degree in 1940, and later went to Harvard, returning to the University as an Associate Professor of Law.

nursing

The youngest division of the University, the School of Nursing, completed its second year in 1955. The four-year program encompasses two years' work on the Fayetteville campus and two years in the new University of Arkansas Medical Center in Little Rock. Also included in the program is work in rural hospitals and community health agencies. The new school is under the leadership of Dean Julia M. Miller.

dean of women

For the past spring semester, Dean of Women Jeannette Scudder has been on a leave of absence from her duties at the University while studying at Columbia. Her position was filled at mid-year by Acting Dean of Women Beverly Stone. Coming to the University in 1940, Miss Scudder has worked tirelessly with problems concerning the women on campus. She holds a Bachelor's degree from Purdue University, and her Master's from Columbia. The Assistant Dean of Women is Miss Barbara Wood.

dean of men

Assuming his duties as Dean of Men in September, 1948, John E. Shoemaker has resigned, effective in June, to become rector of St. John's Episcopal Church in Fort Smith. He was ordained to the ministry last December. Coming to the University in 1946 as assistant director of the Odark Research project, Dean Shoemaker has served as personal counselor and administrator over University men. He is a graduate of Harvard, and is planning to visit Europe before assuming his new duties in the fall. The Assistant Dean of Men is Mr. John King.

student government

BOB JENKINS, President of Associated Students

The Associated Students, composed of the entire student body at the University of Arkansas, is the organization through which student government is operated. Each spring a president, vice-president, secretary, and treasurer are selected in an all-school election. The latter three act as officers of the Student Senate, legislative group of the Associated Students, while the president formulates the policies of student government. Through committees appointed by the president and approved by the Senate, the work of the Associated Students is carried on.

Besides the yearly sportsmanship program and the dances which are traditionally sponsored by the Senate, the Associated Students, during the past year, has launched a program to better student-faculty relations.

A new political group on campus, the Arkansas Party, claims all of the four top student officials. This party held a slight majority in the Senate over the Razorback Party which was in power the preceding year.

The legislative powers of the Associated Students are in the hands of the Student Senate, an organization composed of representatives both from the colleges and from the various organizations on campus. Senators from the colleges are chosen by the student body in a general election held each spring. The Student Senate has undertaken a number of projects this year. It has sponsored the Homecoming, King Porker, and Gae-bale dances, has backed student buses to both Little Rock football games, and has attempted to work out solutions to many problems involving students of the University of Arkansas campus.

The selection and announcement of the various campus beauties is a ticklish job, figuratively (strictly figuratively) speaking. It's much easier and much more pleasant to be among the great bulk of the student body (the male element, that is) and just enjoy the passing parade.

At the Porker Party, Editor Gil Buchanan presented the RAZORBACK beauties with a bouquet.

When Patty McDonald was announced as Miss UA, Jackie Stucker was the first to offer congratulations.

Jo Maryman, candidate for St. Patricia, was interviewed by the Engine Council.

The new Miss University of Arkansas was stormed by well-wishers.

The RAZORBACK Beauties, selected by Richard Okamoto, Photography Editor of ESQUIRE, were announced at the Porker Party.

What does it take to make a beauty? Suntan oil . . . face cream . . . hair curlers . . . permanents . . . lipstick, nail polish, and a little here and a little there . . . puffy formals and tight bathing suits . . . and a "Who cares if everybody is looking at me," attitude . . . it helps to be pretty, too.

The Kappas enlisted some outside help in making their house decorations for Homecoming.

The Pi Phi reproduction of a locomotive pulled into the top spot in the women's division.

a tribute to yesterday . . .

Dickson Street never does change much, but the returning alums could pick out new names on the old stores . . . the campus had changed more than anything else in Fayetteville . . . some of the old picnic spots were sites for the new fraternity houses and dorms . . . the parade had gotten larger during the last twenty years, but that's about all . . . it still didn't start on time.

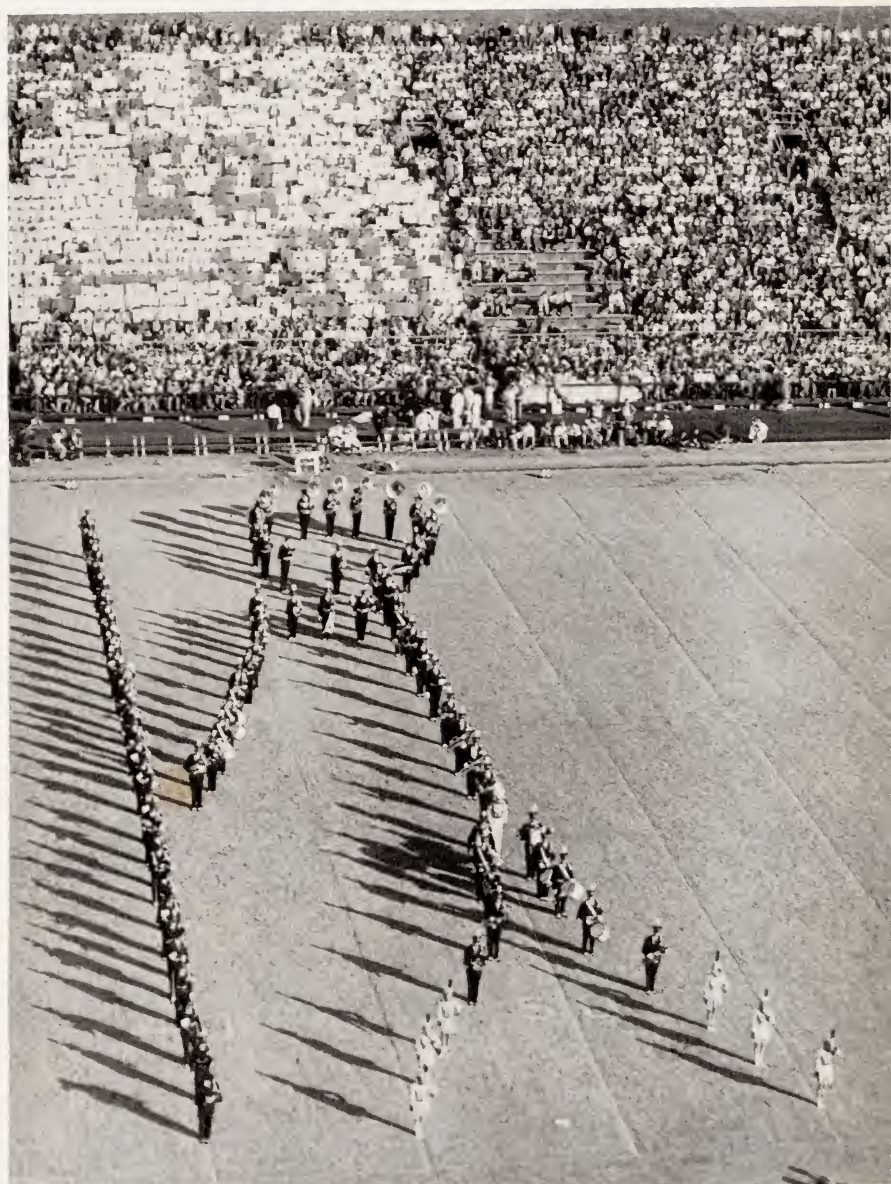

Sigma Nu won first place in the men's float division.

The band led the torchlight parade to the Homecoming pep rally.

Mutual Broadcasting System's Mel Allen flew in to cover the highly publicized Arkansas-SMU game.

The band formed a soldier and saluted the alums with the manual of arms during halftime.

added attractions . . .

No Homecoming would be complete without the torchlight parade and the pep rally in the Greek Theatre . . . the band was loud enough and managed to squeeze a few blaring notes in between each item on the program . . . all of the necessary and proper people were on the stage and all made speeches, but nobody listened . . . the few blaring notes from the band seemed much more appropriate than speeches . . . and everybody hollered . . . loud.

The Arkansas-SMU game marked the first time that Razorback Stadium had been filled to capacity.

Sigma Nu made a clean sweep of the Homecoming contests by winning first place in the house decorations.

Hundreds of alums added to the spirit at the Homecoming rally.

the long weekend . . .

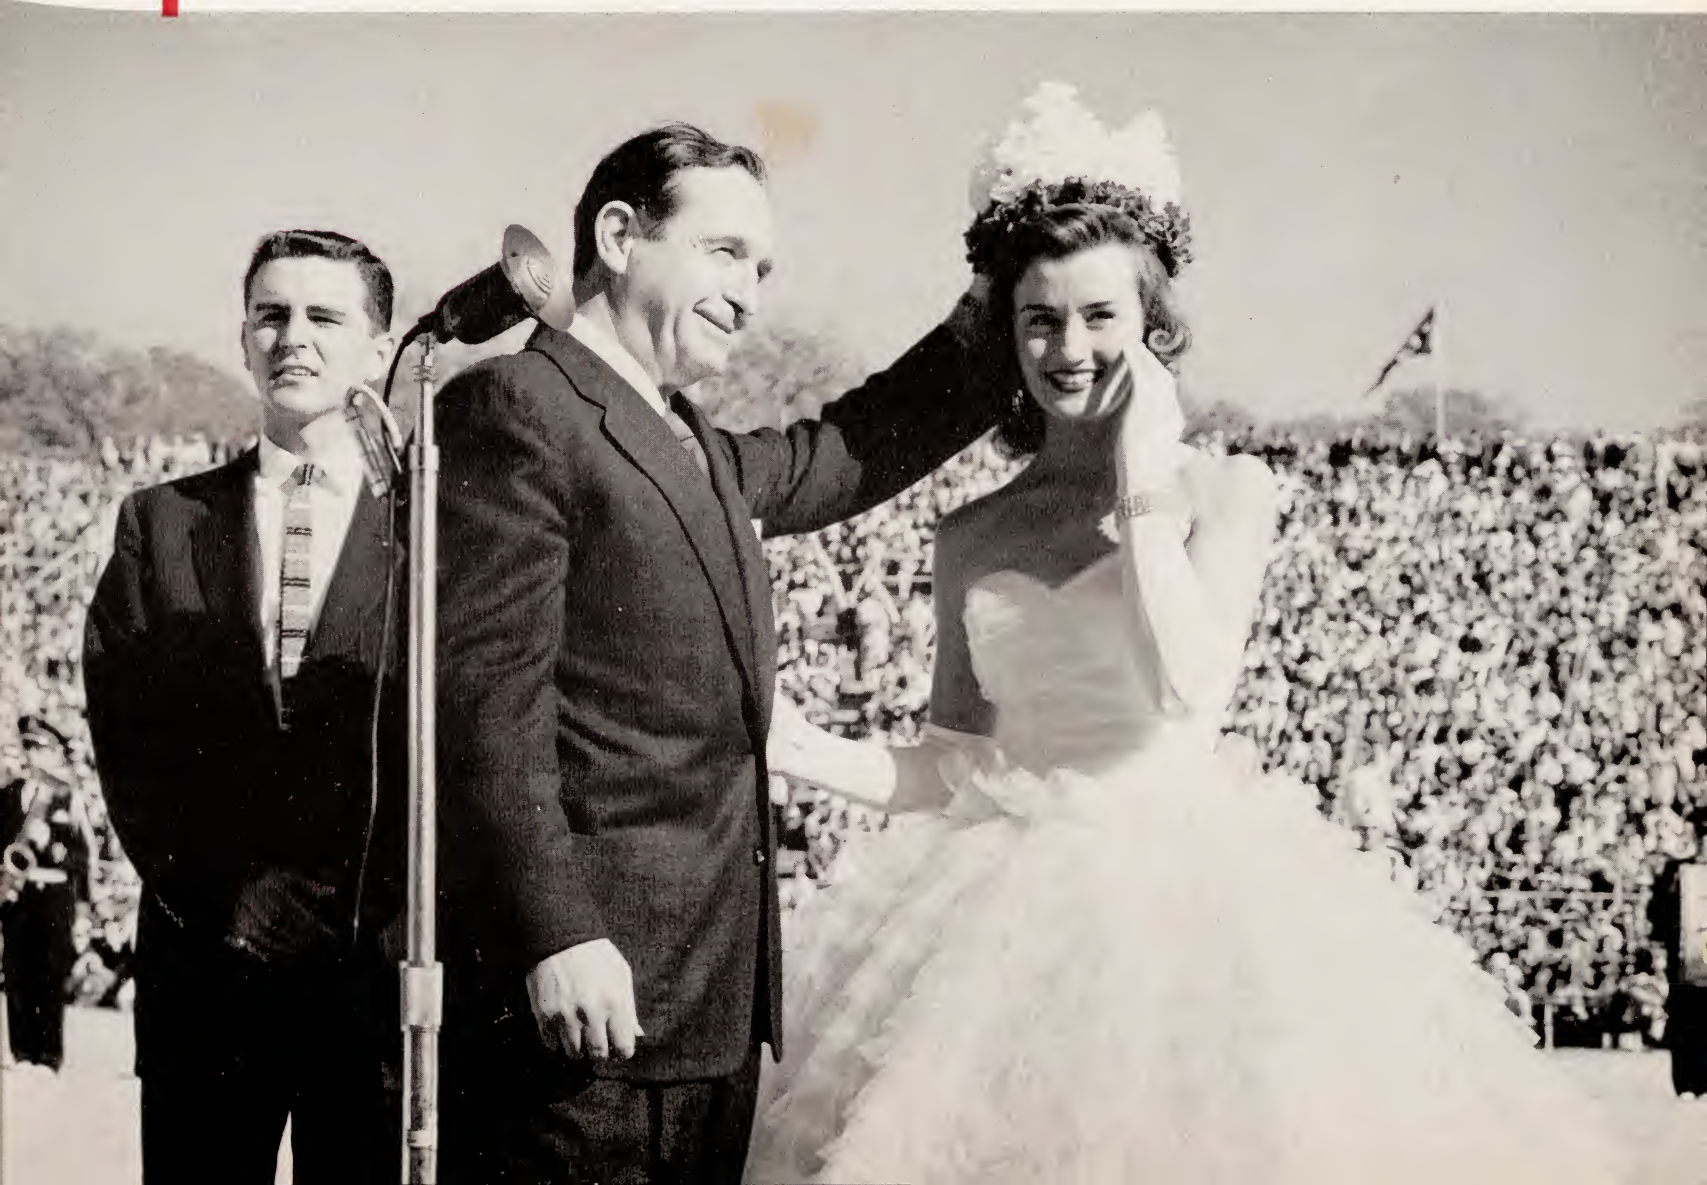

The campus spends many long hours in preparation for the Homecoming weekend. The main problem is an idea for the float and house decorations that will be original and appeal to the students and alums alike . . . and an idea that will not be too expensive. The idea is half of the work, but the execution of the idea is just as difficult as the first part . . . older graduates tend to forget the actual work that Homecoming requires . . . "Why, when I was a student here . . ."

Zeta Tau Alpha's unique house decoration took first prize in its division.

all around the town . . .

The Marching 100's trip to New York, sponsored by Lions' International, was one of the high points of the summer. The band purchased enough film to buy the controlling interest in Eastman Kodak . . . it's an unwritten rule that tourists to New York (tourists who know nothing about cameras and such) snap enough pictures to fill several albums. One band member paid his expenses by selling used rolls of film to unsuspecting tourists . . .

The band visited the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia.

The cameras got a workout on the Empire State building.

For some it was a busman's holiday.

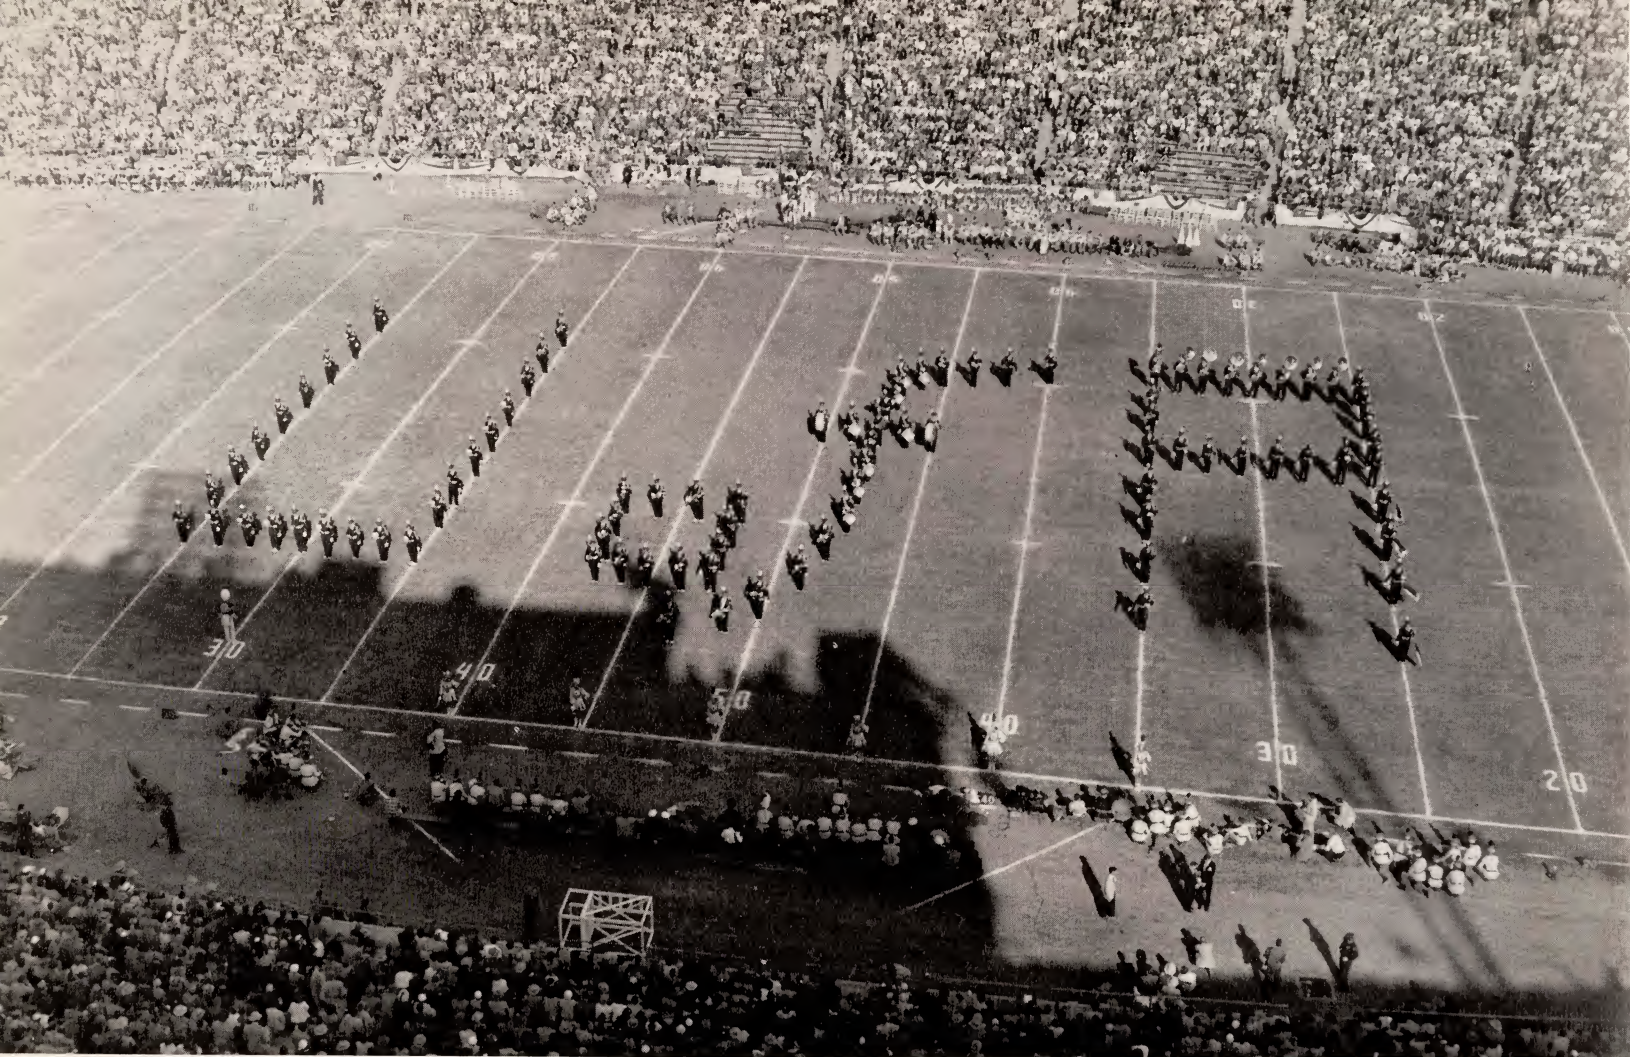

The signposts only served to confuse the band members.

The precision halftime shows were the result of many hours of concentrated practice.

The Razorback band played for W. S. "Pop" Gregson in New York.

The Marching 100 spelled out "U of A" at the Cotton Bowl and played the Alma Mater.

The band was the official send-off committee for the University.

blow the man down . . .

The Razorback Marching 100 was one of the best public relations and goodwill devices the University has had in a long time. The New York trip and the short hops around the state did more for Arkansas than all of the printed propaganda the print shop in Hill Hall would have been able to turn out. The Arkansas band has consistently been rated as one of the outstanding university bands in the United States.

Mr. Marty gave a lawn party for the exhausted band members.

The final check, and the last few nervous minutes before the cue to march into the Cotton Bowl.

Strike up the band! The straight caps . . . polished shoes and white spats . . . a hurried once-over by the Drum Major and then the first roll of the drums . . . a loud blare of music and the swing onto the field . . . as much a part of the game as the football itself.

Even the cheerleaders were frightened by the freshmen at the pep rallies.

The Arkansas Razorback ranted and raved around the cage of the SMU mascot, but the tiger just shook his toothless old head in wonder.

John Barnhill presented Bud Brooks with the Outland trophy at one of the early basketball games.

the din of iniquity . . .

"Hit'im again- Hit'm again! Harder! Harder!" How unpleasant. And yet it is the negative yell . . . the bloody call for maiming and mangling . . . that has the definite appeal to the cheering section. It's remarkable how the young ladies that are cheerleaders can lead these sanguinary cries with such adroitness. Perhaps the days of the simple "Hooray for us" yells are gone forever.

The game was played as much on the bench as on the field.

BOWDEN WYATT, Head Football Coach

the razorback coaches . . .

John Barnhill graduated from the University of Tennessee in 1928 where he was an All-Southeastern Conference guard, and an outstanding track performer. He came to the University in 1946 as head football coach and served in this capacity until 1949 when he was elevated to the post of Director of Athletics. Since his advent to this position, the athletic program of the University has been securely placed on a sound basis, both physically and financially.

The pride of the Ozarks is Head Football Coach Bowden Wyatt, who, in his second season, and following a 3-7 record first year, led the Pigs to an 8-2 record and the Southwest Conference championship. Wyatt, like Barnhill is a product of Tennessee, and gained his college coaching experience at Wyoming where he expounded the single wing formation. With his move to the Arkansas campus he brought his single wing concepts along with the proven theory that good conditioning along with good team morale breeds success. The master of fundamentals has endeared himself to the entire state as one of the most memorable characters in Arkansas football history.

With the return of Glen Rose has come the wide open, high scoring type of basketball which encompassed his former tour as head basketball coach. Rose is not only known for his years as a Razorback mainstay in the thirties, but for his coaching during the war years prior to his addition of the post in 1946. The Rosemen fought from a third place tie of the previous year to a second place deadlock in the 54-55 season and numerous new Razorback and conference records.

this season

The Arkansas Razorbacks completed their most successful season since 1936 as they compiled an 8-2 record and were the host team to Georgia Tech in the Cotton Bowl. Starting the season with a combination of relatively light linemen and inexperienced backs, Coach Bowden Wyatt, sprinkled the mixture with his few lettermen of the past year to develop a national ranked conference champion. Throughout the season the Porker offense rolled up a total of 182 points while displaying their defensive finesse by holding their opponents to a ten-game total of 81 points.

Perhaps the brightest light of the season was the unparalleled performance of Guard Bud Brooks who garnered almost every honor possible for a lineman. Included in his laurels were a place on every All-American team, the Outland Trophy, recognition as the lineman of the year in the Southwest conference, and 36 of 54 possible votes to become the outstanding lineman of the 1955 Cotton Bowl.

Graduation has gleaned from the Razorback powerhouse tackles Eddie Bradford and Jim Roth, who have anchored the Porker line for three seasons, both offensively and defensively, through their dogged persistence. Departing from the backfield, after their finest year, will be blocking back Bobby Proctor and Jim Kolb along with fullback Joe Bill Wilson. After rather average years the trio came into their own and functioned as important cogs in the Porker attack throughout the season. One of the pleasant surprises of the season for Coach Wyatt was the yeoman performances of his three young tailbacks; George Walker, Buddy Bob Benson and Tommy Lockhart. Throughout the season each demonstrated the polish of an experienced veteran with Walker nominated as a fifth man in an all-conference backfield. Each had his own special day as Walker ripped off large chunks of yardage to almost personally defeat Rice. Benson passed for the game winning touchdown against Ole Miss and Lockhart came in to score the initial touchdown and instigated the whitewash job on Houston in the season's finale. The entire team performed admirably throughout the season as young ends Walter Matthews, Jerry McFadden, Teddy Souter and Billy Lyons quickly erased the pre-season fear of poor end play to mold the position into one of the strongest divisions of the team. Enough cannot be said for the work of such backs as Henry Moore, Preston Carpenter, Joe Thomason and Ronnie Underwood who continually compensated for their lack of experience through uncanny hustle and determination. Moore led the team in total rushing offense as he gained 667 yards and was selected to the All-Conference team. Operating from the blocking-back position Carpenter lead the Pigs in pass receiving as he caught 21 for 284 yards and two touchdowns. With this backbone of talent, top-flight football returned to the Ozarks for the first clear championship in the history of the institution and rosy predictions for the future.

One of the rare times when an Arkansas back was halted at the line for no gain.

George Walker

arkansas 41 -- tulsa 0

The 1954 football season opened in the wild and woolly manner which characterized it throughout the year as the Porkers ran rough-shod over the Golden Hurricane. Although out-gained on the ground, the forward wall held at critical times to stave off serious threats by the Wave. The Pigs scored first with three minutes remaining in the initial period as Henry Moore broke loose on a 22 yard scamper. After holding Tulsa on their four inch line in the second quarter, the Hogs drove for their second counter on a pass from Buddy Bob Benson to Bobby Proctor. The Hogs drove for three more counters in the second half with the scores coming on short plunges by Moore, Benson and George Walker. The play which added color to the rather one sided victory came in the third period as Center Jerry Ford picked off a stray arial and sped 76 yards down the sidelines into the Tulsa end zone.

arkansas 20 -- tcu 13

Working together like a friction-free machine, the Pigs ended a six year winless drouth on Texas soil as they surprised an unbelieving TCU eleven, 20-13. Led by the defensive work of two mighty big little men, Joe Thomason and Bobby Proctor, the Pigs scored both early and late to sew up the decision. After the Christians had taken the opening kickoff and moved to the Razor-back 29, the Pigs held and a booming quick kick from the toe of George Walker rolled dormant on the Frog 6. Three plays later, following a vicious tackle by Preston Carpenter, Thomason recovered a fumble on the TCU

18. Henry Moore effected a first down before Walker slanted off right tackle for the tally and then converted to give the Pigs a 7-0 advantage. Later in the quarter, Henry Moore took a handoff from Walker and raced 48 yards to place the score at 13-0. TCU scored in the second and fourth periods to tie the score at 13-13. With less than three minutes remaining, pint sized Bobby Proctor pulled in a Ronnie Clinkscale pass and raced 63 yards to the Frog 6, where on fourth down, Moore blasted over for the game-winning score.

In the Rice game, Preston Carpenter barreled around end with Bud Brooks providing blocking.

Henry Moore plows for yardage as Eddie Bradford cuts back to provide blocking protection.

Buddy Bob Benson

arkansas 21 -- baylor 20

Preston Carpenter placed the icing on Dad's Day as he booted a 12 yard field goal to give the Hogs their third straight victory, 21-20. Arkansas scored early as they moved 52 yards with Henry Moore diving over from the one. Later in the period, following a 61 yard quick kick by George Walker, Carpenter recovered a fumble and on third down Walker knifed into the end zone to run the score to 12-0. The Bears tallied in the second period only to have the Pigs retaliate as Walker fired an aerial to Carpenter, but again the Porkers failed to convert. Baylor went into the lead as they scored in the third and fourth frames but had their third conversion blocked by guard Wayland Roberts. With the Bears in command 20-18, Carpenter calmly booted the game winning goal eight minutes before the gun and the Pigs held as Joe Thomascn recovered a fumble to end a final Baylor surge.

A tremendous Arkansas defense proved the difference as the Pigs took their fourth straight and moved into the number seven spot in the national rankings. Five pass interceptions and a rock-ribbed line directed the Porkers to their first win over the Steers on the Texans' home ground since 1938. Preston Carpenter opened the scoring in the last minutes of the initial period as he intercepted a pass thrown by Delano Womack on the Texas 20 and magnified his advantage into six points for the Hogs. Seven minutes deep in the second period, the Pigs gained control of the ball following a Longhorn fumble and led by the uncanny runs of Buddy Bob Benson moved the ball 63 yards in 11 plays with Benson speeding untouched for the final yards. Henry Moore brought the crowd to their feet as he ripped through the Texas defense and set out on an 83 yard jaunt which resulted in a 20-0 lead for the Pigs at halftime. Although the Porker offense failed to produce any tallies in the second half, the defense did not fail and gave up a single score while continually snuffing Longhorn threats to preserve the victory.

Tackle Jim Roth dives for a Texas fumble which he recovered to stymie a Longhorn drive and add emphasis to the fine defensive work of an inspired Arkansas line.

Preston Carpenter awaits the pass from Buddy Bob Benson which he converted into the only score of the game and a Frank Merriwell finish.

Bud Brooks

arkansas 6 -- ole miss 0

Before over 36,000 victory starved fans the hell-for-leather Pigs from the hill fought on even terms with a powerhouse Ole Miss football machine for 56 minutes then went for broke and connected for their second shutout of the season. The scale tipping score came with less than four minutes to play as tailback Buddy Bob Benson slid parallel to the line of scrimmage and uncorked a 30 yard pass to Preston Carpenter who gathered the pigskin in behind two Rebel defenders and raced the final 36 yards untouched. Despite such standouts in the Arkansas backfield as Benson, Carpenter and Joe Bill Wilson, who average 8 yards per carry, the thunder of the game was centered in the unmovable forward wall. Led by guards Bud Brooks and Eddie Bradford, they fought off each Rebel charge and boosted the Pigs into the fourth spot in the nation.

arkansas 14 -- texas a & m 7

Arkansas took their sixth straight game of the season through the standard procedure of allowing the opposing team to push them all over the field and then capitalizing on Aggie mistakes. The first quarter opened with the Pigs moving the ball at will and behind Henry Moore drove to the Cadet's 24. However, going contrary to custom, a George Walker pass went amiss and Aggie fullback Richard Vick gathered it in to halt the Porker drive. The A&M aggregation began their own drive which was climaxed with two minutes remaining in the initial period as Elwood Kettler crashed over from the three and then booted the extra point to put the Pigs on the short end of a 7-0 score at the end of the first period. The Aggies made their first mistake late in the second quarter as they fumbled on their 38 and Jerry McFadden recovered. Walter Matthews entered the game at this point and on the first play Walker fired a pass to Matthews for the six points and then converted to tie the score at halftime. Arkansas' winning touchdown came in the third period as Henry Moore led them on a sustained drive from the Pigs own 48 to Aggie paydirt. Although this ended the scoring the thrill of the game came with 36 seconds remaining in the game as Don Watson gathered in a punt by George Walker on the A&M 15 and returned it all the way to the Arkansas end zone. However, a clipping penalty nulified the score and the game concluded with Henry Moore being stopped on the Aggie one after a pass interception.

Henry Moore barrels over for the game-winning touchdown in the third quarter.

End Walter Matthews leaps high in the third quarter to pull in a Walker pass on the Owl 12-yard line and set up the game-winning score.

Preston Carpenter

arkansas 28 -- rice 15

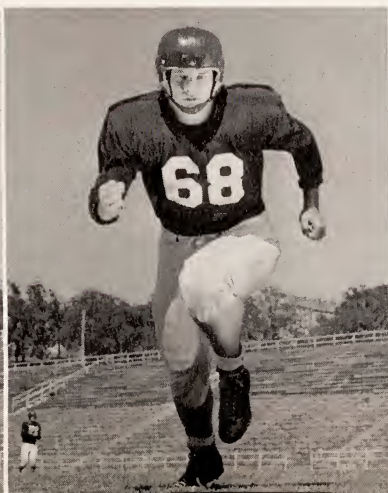

George Walker experienced his finest hour as he piloted the 1954 Razorbacks to an upset victory over the Owls from Houston. Going into the game a three point underdog, the teams battled through a scoreless first quarter but the Rice forces broke the deadlock early in the second frame as quarterback Nesbit scored from the two. Walker led the Pigs on a 70 yard march and retaliated to annex the lead 7-6. In the third quarter Walker fumbled a punt on his own 27, recovered, and sprinted for 73 yards and a 14-6 Porker advantage. Again the Owls came back to post a T.D. and a field goal to regain the lead 15-14. Unimpressed the Hogs rolled back for 71 yards and a Henry Moore score as the lead reverted to the Pigs 21-15. Near the end of the fourth period Walker, attempting to run out the clock, broke clear and snake danced for his nineteenth point of the game and a place on the nation wide dream team.

arkansas 14 -- smu 21

For three quarters the SMU Mustangs, behind halfback Frank Eidom, romped through a fine Arkansas line and then survived a furious passing onslaught in the fourth period to break Arkansas' seven game winning streak and spoil an otherwise perfect Homecoming. For the first three periods the offensive performance featured the entire Pony team with an unstoppable Frank Eidom in the starring role. Before an overflow crowd of 27,000, Eidom gained 163 yards and scored all the Mustang touchdowns. With the beginning of the final period the Pigs unleashed their passing attack and not only scored twice but owned the ball when the final gun sounded.

In the fourth period tailback George Walker moved the ball 72 yards on four passes and climaxed the drive with a ten yard toss to Joe Thomason. After the Pigs recovered a Mustang fumble on the kickoff they drove to the four yard line only to be halted short of the goal. Though trailing by fourteen points the Pigs were still fighting and shook Eidom loose from the ball and Walker again passed for the counter, this time 21 yards to end Walter Matthews. The Ponies weren't to be denied and controlled the ball until the final play when the Pigs again recovered a fumble, but it was too late.

Tailback George Walker breaks around end for yardage behind tremendous blocking by Henry Moore and Bud Brooks.

Preston Carpenter, well-bound by a zealous halfback, sees a George Walker pass bounce off his chest midway during the LSU game at Shreveport.

Henry Moore

arkansas 6 -- lsu 7

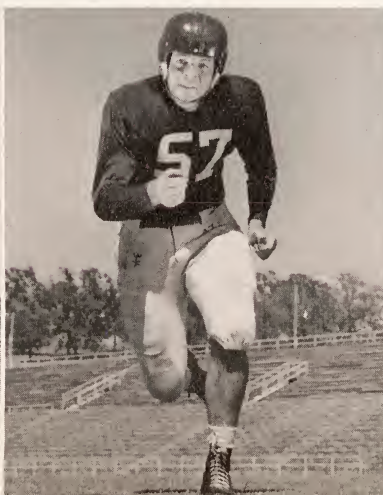

A wide kick on a placement attempt and an inspired LSU defense handed the Razorbacks their second straight defeat of the season. Although the defeat was sour, the upset was sweetened by the Baylor Bears who defeated the SMU Mustangs to boost the Porkers into the Cotton Bowl. Despite the close score the capacity crowd of 34,000 cheered as loudly over the radio reports of the Baylor-SMU contest as for the doggedly determined teams performing before them. The Porkers began the game as though they were planning to run roughshod over the Bengals but pass interceptions continually blocked power-laden drives. The Porkers opened the scoring in the second frame as Buddy Bob Benson led a 36 yard drive which he completed with a scoring pass to end Billy Lyons. The kick was no good. Before the half the Tigers moved the ball for 33 yards with Chuck Johns blasting over from the three. The kick by Johns was good and that was the game as the second half was characterized by several scoring threats but nothing to post on the score board.

arkansas 19 -- houston 0

Arkansas invaded Texas soil for the fourth time of the season and returned home with their fourth straight victory on said soil and also their third shutout of the season. Displaying a rock wall defense and three fine tailbacks, the Porkers scored in the second, third and fourth periods to annex the conquest. After an uneventful first quarter, Tommy Lockhart entered the game and guided the attack for 32 yards and a score for his first of the season. The Porkers scored again in the third period following a recovered fumble by All-American guard Bud Brooks. In the 45 yard march for the counter, Henry Moore broke loose for 15 yards and George Walker passed to Jerry McFadden for 23 with Walker diving over from the one to give the Pigs a 13-0 lead. The final Razorback tally came in the final period when Buddy Bob Benson completed a 75 yard march by firing a pass intended for Jerry McFadden but was deflected into the waiting arms of Walter Matthews who completed the scoring.

Arkansas entered the Cotton Bowl as undisputed champions only to secure the lead, hold it past the half and finally go down in defeat, 14-6. The first quarter offered threats by both teams as the Yellow Jackets received the kickoff and managed to hold the ball for the first nine minutes without scoring. After an unsuccessful field goal attempt, the Pigs took over on their own 20 and drove to the one foot line as the quarter ended. On the first play of the second period, tailback George Walker, who performed like an All-American, sliced over for the score and then saw his conversion attempt sail wide. The second half presented an entirely different story as the Porkers, after losing blocking back Preston Carpenter and end Jerry McFadden through injuries, seemed to lose their offensive punch. After an exchange of punts, Georgia Tech took over on their own 42 and drove to the Arkansas 9 where it was first down and goal to go. For three downs it appeared as though the Pigs would hold, but on fourth down Rotenberry scooted around end and Mitchell's kick was good to place the Jackets in the lead for good. For the second time in the half the visitors marched for a score, this time on a short plunge by Dick Mattison and again Mitchell's kick was good to climax the scoring.

The Razorback freshman football team posted a "first" as well as opened a facet for a whole new competitive area during the 1954 season. In the course of compiling a 3-2 season record they played the first freshman Southwest Conference game for an Arkansas team. The opponent for this precedent was Texas Christian University. The Hogs found an easy evening against the Wogs at Fort Smith and came off victorious. The Porkers went into the game outweighed twenty-five pounds per man but had little difficulty in making their newly fashioned single wing as effective as it was proving to the varsity. The Baby Porkers opened at War Memorial Stadium in Little Rock and lost a 14-6 decision to the Little Rock Junior College Trojans. The Shoats scored first but bobbled too often to hold the JC team back. After the TCU encounter, the Porkers again entered action as underdogs. They picked up the odds magnificently and stopped Miami (Oklahoma) Junior College's winning streak at 23 straight games. The score over the one-time Little Rose Bowl competitors was 20-13. Mistakes proved costly again at Stillwater, Oklahoma, and the Shoats absorbed a 23-7 defeat to the Oklahoma A&M frosh. The Baby Hogs climaxed their season with a 40-20 victory over the Tulsa Gales. It was Arkansas' only home game.

The freshman basketballers made great headway individually in rolling up a so-so 3-9 season record. The leading scorers were Freddy Grim, Jack Snodgrass, and Jimmy Anderson. Coach Raymond Shaw's club was hurt by the loss of Anderson at mid-term. Then too, the team had a tell-tale lack of height. Other players were Edgar Dozier, Page Thomas, Larry Rydell, Joe Nealy, Bob Childress, and Tom Epperson.

The unexpected success of the Razorback basketball team helped to make the athletic year even more golden. Picked by most handicappers to wallow around about sixth in the Southwest Conference standings, the Hogs threatened to take the championship and ended the season in a second-place tie with Texas Christian. The first hint of things to come was disclosed in the holiday SWC tournament at Houston. After losing four of their first six games, Glen Rose's men thrashed the Rice Owls, 73-66, in the tourney's first round, lost an 84-64 decision to powerful Alabama in the semi-final round, but recovered to whip Texas A&M, 74-70, and wrap up the third spot. The crowning success came in the final game of the season against TCU, when records fell like bowling pins. In one of the finest performances ever shown by a Porker team, they scored 110 points for an all-time conference record, and an all-time U of A mark, and their 46 free throws out of 63 attempts set another SWC standard. Seven Hogs tallied 11 points or more. At the same time, Richard O'Neal, TCU's phenomenal scorer, was held to 17 markers. There are probably several reasons for the Pig's success. Coach Rose, early realizing he didn't have that "big man" that is considered by many authorities the first step toward a winning season, put the Hog's offense on a tandem or double post system. Also to be considered is the late scoring drive by the consistent guard from Harrison, Jerald Barnett. The junior all-SWC candidate entered the season as Arkansas' leading scorer for the second straight time. His final total was 247 points for a 10.3-point average per game. But Barnett wasn't alone in the 200-point bracket. All pressing him for top honors were Buddy Smith, Pete Butler, Norman Smith, Carroll Scroggins and Terry Day. Buddy finished the season with 239 points and a 10-point average. Norman, who co-captained the team with Carroll Scroggins, popped in 236 points. Scroggins scored 219 markers. Day tallied 217. Butler, who finished with 239 points, placed himself among all-time leading Razorback scorers by sinking 31 points against Texas.

Perhaps the reason for the fine showing wasn't any of these. Hard work probably could take that honor. Not blessed with top physical assets and hurt severely by the loss of five regulars from the previous season, the odds weren't stacked right. The slow start in December was the result of Rose's experimental period in which the players threw their wholehearted energy. The result of this was a 14-10 season record and an 8-4 conference mark.

The Razorback's opener was a dismal one for the home crowd which witnessed a 74-68 defeat at the hands of Northwest Louisiana State. But a bright spot appeared in Butler, who found the range for 21 points, mainly with a fine hook shot. The Porkers led much of the first half. They bounced back and played admirably before losing to the Phillips "66" Oilers, their only AAU opponent of the season, 72-65. Terry Day, a fine sophomore from Magnolia, showed promise of things to come by scoring 14 points, high for Arkansas. Arkansas got on the winning trail by dropping Oklahoma City, 81-76, in overtime. Scroggins scored two long field goals to help the Hogs in the extra period. Buddy Smith was the Pork's top scorer with 19 points. After dropping behind 16 points at the half the Hogs stayed on even terms with Tulsa the second half before losing, 63-47. Still experimenting, the Razorbacks ran into more than they could handle in sixth nationally ranked Missouri Tigers and came out on the short end of a 77-58 count despite a 22-point performance by Buddy Smith. Scroggins was the hot man in the 74-64 victory over Ole Miss, then the Porkers entered the Southwest tourney at Houston. That's where the turning point came.

In the remaining 15 games, nine of them were on the winning side. Tulsa got the first taste of the revived Porkers and took a 68-60 licking. Norman Smith was the winner's top man in scoring with 17 points. The Razorbacks looked sharp and ready to go against Texas Christian although they took a 67-62 defeat. Frog sophomore Richard O'Neal was the difference with his 38 points. Norman Smith made 19 for Arkansas. The Porkers trailed all the way against Texas A&M, for the exception of a 59-59 tie with 1:20 left in the contest. Angered by this setback, the Razorbacks squared their conference record at 1-1 by hanging an 83-61 loss on the Rice Owls. After dropping Baylor, 73-63, the Hogs polished off Oklahoma City, 55-52, to near a milestone in the history of Arkansas basketball. With an 85-74 decision over Southern Methodist, the Hogs wrapped up the 500th victory of all-time for the University. Next, the Porks ran into Raymond Downs and the Texas Longhorns. Downs went wild with 41 points to lead the Steers to a 75-74 overtime victory. Again Norman Smith led the Arkansas scoring with 20 points. Rebounding mightily, partly on the fine showing of Leo McDonald of Many, La., and partly with a five-minute stall, the Porkers racked up Baylor, 75-72. After tanning Rice again, 86-75, the Rosemen tussled with St. Louis and

Then they began their stretch drive in the conference by dropping Texas, 79-74, but followed with an 83-69 loss to Southern Methodist. track...

The track season was highlighted by the fifth annual Arkansas Relays on April 10 in which nearly 500 high school and college entrants participated. The meet afforded almost ideal weather conditions and as a result eleven new high school marks were established along with three new marks in the college division.

One of the brightest lights of the season was middle distance star, Bill Diven who tied the Arkansas Relays mark for the 100 yard dash as he stepped it off in 9.8 seconds. Throughout the season the Porkers competed in the Kansas, Texas, and Oklahoma A&M Relays, placing third in the Oklahoma meet.

Along with the various relays, the Pigs encountered both Tulsa and Kansas State Teachers in dual meets. Never a strong contender in the Southwest Conference, the Pigs placed sixth in the conference meet as Dick Hazard led the way.

Hazard, who owns the Arkansas record for the javelin throw at 204'6 $\frac{1}{4}$ ", scored in both divisions as he placed second in the javelin throw and then followed this by placing third in the broad jump.

Although no new varsity track records were set by the men of Coach Dick Hitt, freshman Gerald Henderson set a new mark for the junior field men as he tossed the shot put an even 43 feet.

Due to the weather problem and the distance between schools, the Arkansas Baseball teams do not compete with other Southwest Conference teams for the championship. However the 1954 schedule covered 21 games and at the end of the season, the Pigs had compiled a record of 5 wins and 16 losses. The Porkers opened the season with a pair of wins over Bradley only to lose their next nine including two each to national champions Missouri and the professional Hutchinson Kansas Elks. The Pigs bounced back to drub Tulsa two straight before dropping a pair to the Wave after returning home. Meeting Bradley for the second time of the season, they split a two-game setto and then lost a close singleton to Big Ten runner up Illinois. In the closing fracas of the season the Pigs dropped a double header to the North East Oklahoma State aggregation. Despite the seemingly poor record posted by the Porkers, the majority of their losses were by the margin of only one or two runs.

The Porkers operated throughout the season with the bare minimum of pitchers as Southpaw Charlie Bogan, jack-of-all-trades Edsel Nix, and Tommy Cusack carried the lions share of the hurling chores. Much of the scoring punch was supplied by recruits from the football team. Lamar McHan, Walter Matthews, Francis Long, and Preston Carpenter whacked the ball at over a 300 clip. Lefty Bogan exhibited signs of developing into one of the finest hurlers ever to wear the Razorback red as his control was superb. Most of his defeats were of the heartbreak variety. The Pigs changed their location for home games from the field now occupied by the new Animal Science structure to the Fayetteville park near the fairgrounds. The park is to be improved with new fences constructed in the outfield and more and better bleachers installed.

For the past five years the team has been under the direction of Bill Ferrell and during the five years has compiled a record of 34 wins and 49 defeats. Since 1897, when baseball was first introduced to the Arkansas campus, the Porkers, under the leadership of nine different coaches, have compiled a record of 237 wins and 213 losses for a respectable .526 percentage.

KNEELING: Dick Reid, Jim Porter. STANDING: Glenn Lane, Ewell Lee, Bill Geurin.

The Razorback tennis team, playing a non-conference schedule, finished with a record of 5 wins in 10 matches for their first .500 season in two years. Included in their five wins was an upset over Missouri, two victories over Drury College, and a defeat slapped on South West Missouri State. Throughout the season Jim Porter and Ewell Lee provided the one-two punch with able assistance provided by Dick Reid, Bill Geurin and Glenn Lane. The team is coached by John "Red" Davis who is looking to the future by staging the first annual Tri-State Tennis Tournament in June. A United States Lawn Tennis Association approved meet, the Pigs were hosts to over 40 entrants from Arkansas, Oklahoma, and Missouri during the three day meet. By sponsoring such a tournament, the University hopes to interest some of the best tennis talent in the area in its program and thus develop a strong, consistent winning team. It is interesting to note that tennis is the oldest of the spring sports at Arkansas; it was instigated in 1894. Although generally weak in this sport, the new system of securing and developing talent shows promise of starting Arkansas up the ladder to tennis power in the South.

Led by par shooting of Miller Barber, the Arkansas Razorbacks finished the season in third place behind national champions SMU and Texas. At home the Porkers were extremely potent as they won 2 of their 3 matches, with the only defeat coming at the hands of SMU. On the road, however, exactly the opposite was true as the Pigs dropped two and won one. Outside of conference play the Porkers were more successful as they took the measure of both Missouri and Tulsa. Along with Barber the team was composed of Ray Bob Barnes who, although playing creditable golf, finished slightly back of the leaders.

Golf was begun at Arkansas in 1929, when Billy Bridewell entered the conference tournament, although the school had no official golf team as such, and won the gold medal. Since that time the University has entered several very fine teams in conference play but has yet to win a conference championship. However, the conference as a whole has never become exceptionally strong in golf as its one and only national championship was won in 1954 by the Mustangs from SMU.

The Army ROTC Detachment was established in 1873 and is now in its 82nd year as one of the oldest departments in the University. The present Corps is composed of 457 men in the basic classification and 162 in the advanced sections. To be selected for work in the advanced phase, a student must score an acceptable grade on the RQ-3 examination, have a junior standing with two years remaining in their college work, and either have completed the basic courses or at least two years of active military service.

Included in the advanced training is a six weeks period spent by the advanced students during the summer preceding their senior year. Within this six weeks period the Cadets are schooled in the actual operation of an Army post plus field experience in the use of weapons under simulated battle conditions. Classroom instruction is delivered by the commissioned officers of the unit while technical information is generally supplied by the non-coms.

A total of eleven commissions was awarded at the mid-semester graduation exercises, and at the end of the spring semester 41 men will receive their bars as second lieutenant.

Not only does the Unit comprises a standard military organization, but also sponsors a fine drill platoon and one of the outstanding rifle teams in the state. Through classwork, practical experience and a fostering of individual thought, the ROTC training program seeks to develop young men who will continue the time-honored custom of outstanding military leadership.

One of the outstanding reasons behind the proficiency in drill executed by the Arkansas unit is to be found in the performance of their band. Leading a parade, putting spirit into a review, or simply at reg-

With Lt. Col. Ray Alford at the helm, the Air Force ROTC Detachment at the University of Arkansas has concerned itself for the past two years with the development of future Air Force officers through a generalized program of education. The Corps is composed of 342 Cadets of which 62 are enrolled in the advanced phase of the work. The men are selected for the advanced portion through both the successful completion of the Air Force Officers Qualification Test and an all inclusive physical examination.

Along with their study at the University the Cadets must attend a four week summer session at an Air Base before receiving their commissions. At the completion of the Fall semester 13 men were commissioned as second lieutenants and the Corps will produce 24 more more of similiar rank following graduation exercises in spring.

The Unit itself comprises a wing which is further sub-divided into groups, squadrons, and flights. The main Unit sponsors such supplementary division as a band, drill team and rifle team together with supplying members for Scabbard and Blade and Pershing Rifles, the honor societies for basic and advanced military students. Commanded by Cadet Col. Bob Jenkins, the Cadets themselves plan and execute the actual operation of the wing with the approval of the PAST and his staff. The objective of the program is to effect, through a self-actualizing process, an attitude of service and knowledge of officer responsibility which will serve to augment the Cadets prowess through their tour of duty and in civilian capacities.

For the theme of the 1955 RAZORBACK, we chose a very familiar phrase, "the best years of our lives." Perhaps you may think that this is a little overly sentimental, well, possibly it is. But few students of the University of Arkansas could truthfully say that they had not heard those words at least once accompanied by "but remember, make the most of them."

Before we started, the job seemed impossible, and, after finishing the book, it seemed even more impossible that we had been able to accomplish the thousand and one things involved in the production of an annual. We tried to do things differently, borrowing ideas from other books and inventing new devices. We planned a section one week and it was just what we wanted. Then the following week, it somehow didn't look quite as well as it had before. Finally, after a summer of work on the layout, we felt we had it, the skeleton of the '55 RAZORBACK.

In September, the search for pictures was on, not just any picture, but exactly the right one for exactly the right spot. After a few weeks of this, we decided that certain pictures were not so bad after all, and, really, they were almost what we had in mind. To collect almost 800 pictures on every subject from last year's Gaebale to this year's student court has a way of becoming a little complicated.

A picture may be worth a thousand words but Phil and Sissi learned that some pictures are still difficult to caption.

The Editorial Staff of the RAZORBACK: Phil Anderson, Assistant Editor; Sissi Riggs, Associate Editor; Gil Buchanan, Editor; Susie Wade, Class Editor; Lynn Quillin, Sports and Military Editor.

● ● ● After several months of pleading with photographers and after all the pictures were safely at the engraver, one would think that the trouble was over. But no. Then the tedious task of copy writing began. We learned that a piece of paper in a typewriter seems awfully blank when you return to a certain picture for the fourteenth time to try to caption it. But, finally, even the copy work was completed.

One of the many to thank for this book is George Hackney. George designed the cover and did the layouts for the beauty section. The end sheets were done by Nancy Howard.

Among the photographers, Bob's Studio deserves a special pat on the back for the outstanding work done on the beauty pictures. The opening picture of Old Main at night took several nights of work by Doyne Dodd.

But most deserving of praise is the small, overworked staff of the RAZORBACK. Susie Wade spent several weeks of steady work on the class section, possibly the duller yet most complicated job to be done. Feature writing was Phil Anderson's department. In the sport and military section, Lynn Quillin bore the brunt of the work. As Associate Editor, Sissi Riggs was on hand to help with the multitude of problems that arose on any and every day.

So, here it is, the culmination of almost a year of planning, plotting, scheming, phone calls, dark rooms, typewriters, and headaches. We only hope that it does record one of your "best years" at Arkansas.

There was a division of labor on the business staff by Aub Martin and Jerry Patterson.

• arkansas traveler

Five afternoons a week, Sunday through Thursday, a vast amount of time spent by a varying number of people is devoted to providing the student body with a newspaper for and by the students.

Published four times weekly in the print shop in Hill Hall, the ARKANSAS TRAVELER reaches the campus at the height of the morning activity and there by attains a peak of distribution. This year, the TRAVELER has specialized, much against normal policy, in bringing to the students top football news during the fall. This, of course, was due to the phenomenal success of the Razorbacks, which indirectly lead to success for the paper in that department.

Under the policy of the best for the most, the TRAVELER has plugged student efforts in entertainment drives, REW, Campus Chest and Gaebale, as its part in making student enterprises go over. The TRAVELER has, in addition maintained a long standing policy this year of helping, but not being subordinated by the administration.

In news coverage, scooping the state papers became a regularity rather than an exception through the year, even scoring beats with such stories as the collapse of the field house, Bud Brooks' All-American honors and pictorial scoops, through the publication of an extra of the new football coach.

Associate Editors Nancy McDonald and Ronnie Farrar often ran a close race with the four o'clock deadline.

• • • This year the TRAVELER made several changes from the past years in style, make-up and editorial page content. With a shift of emphasis to more editorial comment on the weekly editorial page, the TRAVELER has strived to cover subjects of interest to the campus, the faculty and the administration, and a few of state wide import. The number of personal columns written by staff members was cut to one done by the various editors from time to time. The old standby, Newsmakers, is still one of the favorites of the edit page, and naturally, the syndicated cartoons by Bibler as well as those by home talent, remain best sellers.

Without using a set form for make-up, rather varying from day to day the TRAVELER has kept its appearance fresh and uncluttered. Make-up styles range from conservative modern to tabloid, and never was the staff prone to miss using banner headlines for anything that rated them.

A tightly-knit organization within the staff, though manned by too few people, has been the great secret of TRAVELER success this year. This crew of TRAVELER staffers came from nearly all the different colleges of the University and, on a whole, the average age of the staff is lower than any year since before the war.

Although this year's TRAVELER will probably go down in the history of the University as an average, successful paper, the 1955 TRAVELER had its moments of glory as well as its moments of pain. Those who were responsible for its appearance each morning on the campus certainly feel that this, as well as any year, is different, and will be remembered as different.

• guild ticker

The GUILD TICKER is the publication of the College of Business Administration. It takes its rather elusive name from a combination of the ticker tape machine, a symbol of business activity, and the Commerce Guild, which sponsors the magazine. The TICKER is published each year on Commerce Day.

The GUILD TICKER was first issued in 1937, and since that time its aim has been to acquaint the student majoring in Business Administration with the industrial and economic problems of Arkansas, as well as containing the activities of the College of Business Administration for the past year.

The 1955 edition of the GUILD TICKER contained numerous changes over past issues. This was the first year that the magazine was published only once. In past years there have been two smaller editions, one appearing at the end of each semester. The 1955 GUILD TICKER contained sixty pages, more than twice the size of past issues.

Photographs comprised a major part of the magazine, with all graduating Business Administration seniors being pictured in informal groups. There were also special sections of photographs taken in class rooms, the BA library, hallways, exterior scenes, and elsewhere.

The TICKER staff learned that it took a lot of work to convert an idea to a printed page.

● arkansas agriculturist

The ARKANSAS AGRICULTURIST is the official publication of the students and faculty of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics and has been published since 1924. The magazine is published four times each year by the students in the college.

The Dean's page is a regular feature of the magazine. In each issue there appears an article written by Dean S. E. Lippert or Assistant Dean G. T. Hudson.

Other features of the magazine this year have been an article about the agricultural organizations, dealing with student organizations in the College of Agriculture and Home Economics; a feature on the Home Management House; the national Judging Team contests; and the Colhecon Workshop which was held on the campus in the spring. Also featured was an article by Dr. Vera MacNair, professor in Home Economics, about her research on Arkansas sweet potatoes.

Barbara Keil and Jim Kimbrough made a last minute check before sending the copy to the print shop.

• arkansas engineer

The ARKANSAS ENGINEER is the official magazine of the College of Engineering and is published quarterly. Its origin dates back to 1912, although it was a number of years later before the magazine became a continuous publication.

The ENGINEER is a member of the Engineering College Magazines Associated, composed of over thirty members who regularly exchange their individual issues. The association holds annual conventions for the purpose of improving editorial style, financial management, layout, and general appeal. This year's convention was held in Minneapolis, Minnesota, at the University of Minnesota. Allen Venner and Tommy Branigan were the official delegates from the ENGINEER and had an expense paid trip to the convention. While there, one of the main points stressed was the need for more and more technical writers to fill the void of the many available jobs in that field. For instance, with the complex equipment being produced today, operating manuals are very necessary and technical writers are the ones to write them.

The ENGINEER adopted the policy this past year of trying to publicize the College of Engineering to the businessmen of the state and to show the engineering students the employment opportunities here in Arkansas. This was achieved through writing about some of the important products manufactured in Arkansas such as bus bodies, farm equipment, and electrical equipment, to mention a few. Another issue was aimed toward orienting the freshmen about the college and giving some advice on how to study, and what to strive toward their first year.

Venner, Bauni and Gilbert checked and rechecked all the material for the ENGINEER.

• • • The Engineer's Day issue was quite elaborate, containing the cheese cake pictures of the St. Patricia candidates and pictures of the St. Pat candidates. In addition, there were write-ups about the tradition of the "Golden Chicken" award, the tug of war with the Agri's, the beard growing contest, and the dance. Gold keys were awarded to the staff members at the banquet. The issue contained many student-written articles and thereby gave them an opportunity to develop their writing technique.

The ENGINEER is designed to appeal to all engineers regardless of their major. For instance, the most popular feature is "Cracked Retorts"—the joke page, of course. Some of the other features are "Recent Reports," which gives the latest technical developments in industry; "Engine House News," which tells the latest activities of the departmental organizations, as well as the professional and honorary groups. Another interesting feature is "Ark Lites," a pictorial page of interesting scenes in industry.

Feature articles by outstanding guest editors have included "Four Hints of Help to Students" by Harold J. Engstrom, Head Engineer for the Arkansas Foundry; and "Tomorrow's Engineer" by Dr. John R. Dunning, Dean of Columbia University College of Engineering. Another was "We Should All Be Concerned . . ." by C. F. Kettering of General Motors

Although the ENGINEER is primarily for the engineering students, it is also mailed to most of the high schools throughout Arkansas as well as to leading businesses over the state.

Business staffers checked the new distribution plans.

The ARKANSAS LAW REVIEW AND BAR ASSOCIATION JOURNAL, issued quarterly with each year's issues comprising a volume, contains a student section consisting of case notes on recent American decisions and lengthy comments on contentious points of law of interest to the legal scholar and practicing lawyer.

Also included in the publication are legal articles written by members of the Law School faculty and other outstanding legal writers, varying in nature from comprehensive analyses of legal questions to much shorter comments on statutes, enacted in the immediate past session of the Arkansas legislature, which have effect upon Arkansas law. board of publications

ED MAXSON, Chairman of the Board of Publications

The Board of Student Publications is a committee set up by the constitution of Associated Students for the purpose of regulation and control of all campus publications. The board is authorized to accept bids and award contracts on the all-campus publications and to elect the editors of the TRAVELER, RAZORBACK, and A BOOK. It also names the Business Managers of the TRAVELER and RAZORBACK. The board approves salaries of editors, managers, and other important staff positions on the all-school publications.

Membership on the board is set up in the following way: The editor of the TRAVELER is automatically chairman, the editor of the RAZORBACK and President of the Press Club are permanent members. The President of the University appoints two faculty members each year: One from the journalism faculty and one other. The President of Associated Students each year appoints one faculty members and one member of the Student Senate to the board. In addition to these two more seats are filled each year by two of the four editors of the LAW REVIEW, ENGINEER, GUILD TICKER, and AGRICULTURIST. These are appointed by the president of the university and serve only one year.

the arts

The Collegiate Singers, under the direction of Herrold Headley, provided the University with a singularly outstanding choral group.

The mayor of Monroe, La., presented Charles Turner with the keys to the city during the Collegiate Singers' tour.

collegiate singers...

There was an unusual amount of interest in the choral groups this year, and it was reflected in the number of members of the University Choir, Lyric Chorale, Men's Glee Club, and the Collegiate Singers.

Choir rehearsal was intense, but retained an informal atmosphere.

the messiah...

The University Choir presented the fifth annual Messiah performance.

An impressive march down the aisle . . .

Handel's "Messiah" was delivered to a large and appreciative congregation at Central Methodist Church.

off stage . . .

The Dramatics Department of the Fine Arts Center offers far more than instruction in acting. One of the most prominent phases of the FCA program is the practical instruction backstage. With saws and hammers and paper mache the set workers create their own little world . . . from the standpoint of the audience it seems to be better than the one we face every day.

The students work out their own lighting plots for various plays and scenes.

The set of "Cosi Fan Tutte" involved a great deal of detail work.

Carolyn Sager, Sarah Grace Martin, and Bill Orton featured in "Cosi Fan Tutte."

Charles Martinelli handled the costumes for "Jenny Kissed Me."

"Angel Street" was one of the Blackfriars' summer theatre productions.

The costumes for the first full length opera in several years required careful planning and design.

The Fine Arts Center has achieved a certain amount of fame and recognition for the quality of the courses offered in contemporary art.

Students in architecture constructed models of their current drawing board projects.

a blend of talents...

The Fine Arts Center is perhaps the most versatile building on the campus. The various art classes, the music department, and the dramatic department combine the great range of developed talent of the students in the plays, concerts, and art exhibits. The Fine Arts Center is a complete plant within itself, and the facilities are unexcelled.

The department teaches several courses in sculpturing.

"Jenny Kissed Me" was one of the lighter plays of the season.

"She," a part of the Contemporary Composers Festival program, was presented by the Department of Music in collaboration with the Departments of Speech and Dramatic Arts.

Down the campus after a Saturday eight o'clock . . . the loneliest time in all creation.

halls

Barbara Sears was mistress of ceremonies for the Carnall stag party before the AWS Vice-Versa Dance. The girls then picked up their dates and headed for the Union.

The girls at the 4-H House gathered in front of the fire to read the day's mail.

They kept the ping-pong tables hot at Davis.

The coke machine at Razorback Hall was the first stop during the study breaks.

Needles and thread were at a premium when the new Army ROTC patches were issued.

after date call...

The halls quieted down about midnight . . . except for the card game in one room . . . it seems very probable that some students would wither and die from inaction if it were not for bridge and poker . . . most of the students are in bed by twelve, though . . . all worn out from the dozen or so study breaks taken during the evening.

the warm november...

Working on the house decorations for Homecoming was a lot easier with pleasant weather and no coats . . . the house decorations went up relatively fast, but there were a great many students that seemed to believe that things would move along a lot faster if they offered their unsolicited advice . . . and everyone knows that anyone acting in an advisory capacity is not expected to do manual labor . . .

Scrabble is dandy, but . . .

The Razorback Hall boys were still at work late Friday afternoon.

The sidewalk superintendents had looked forward all year to Homecoming. "It'll never work that way, buddy."

Some days even an advertisement looked good.

Myra Dawn Hazel offered suggestions for improvement on the Davis Hall Whale.

The campus was all decorated in fall colors for Homecoming weekend. The trees were beautiful, and for once we didn't have to say, "Well, if you had just been here last weekend." After the game, though, a lot of people wished they had been some place else this weekend.

The true hypocrite is the person who claims to enjoy studying.

Chess always did give a rather aesthetic atmosphere to a room.

Most late bull sessions mean that the next day will be devoted to sleep instead of class.

the midnight oil...

Those that devote their free time to study will surely be rewarded for their diligence . . . it is such an evident fact, and yet it is surprising what can be done with fact with just a little rationalization . . . anybody can study, the real idea of college is to learn how to get along with other people . . . simple, isn't it?

It was very unusual ever to find two people in the same room studying at one time.

The popularity of the record enthusiasts would decline as the night wore on.

Sometimes the constant struggle for power in the halls resulted in outbreaks of violent emotion.

It would be hard to find an equal for the traditional stimulating game of Old Maid after supper.

Every house and dormitory must have a specimen of that peculiar individual, the Middle-of-the-Night Hall Roamer. This is the person that can always be found padding about the hall at three o'clock every morning. Since it is necessary to sleep all day in order to stay up all night, the Hall Roamers only last two semesters at the very most.

To the experienced bull session man, there is only one topic of any importance.

The quiet, after-hours visits in the girls' houses lacked the quality and tone of a real, rip-roaring bull session.

The Holcombe piano was usually subject to quiet-hour restrictions.

Before going to bed, the Holcombe girls would gather about and read Amy Vanderbilt's rules of good conduct for a lady.

the fellowship hours . . .

The time between date call and bed was just about the only time it was possible for hallmates to talk and visit without having to rush. Of course, the girls that had decided they were really and truly in love would hang on the phone for an hour and then drift off to bed . . . but it wouldn't be too long before they were back in the fellowship groups. It seems that the average life of a "lasting romance" is about three weeks.

The Executive Council is the governing body of the MIHC and administers, finances, and controls all activities of the MIHC. The purposes of the MIHC are to promote and perpetuate a greater fellowship and to develop a consciousness of unity and responsibility among the residents and to act as a governing body for all Inter-Hall activities.

This year the MIHC sponsored an entry in the Singfony, a float in the Homecoming parade, new furniture for the MIHC lounge, and a Christmas party.

Activities were climaxed this year by Carnall's 50th Anniversary celebration. A full week-end of activities were held to accentuate the occasion — open house for all alums, faculty tea, and the 50th Anniversary Ball.

In addition to this, the girls were kept busy with house parties, birthday dinners, sweater hops, the Harvest Moon Ball, and the traditional gala Christmas dinner-dance. And in keeping with the spirit of the season, the girls hostessed a Christmas party for some of the youngsters of Fayetteville.

Then Carnall invited all of the gals on the campus to a stag party preceding the AWS Vice Versa Dance. And to complete the year's activities, a picnic was held for the girls and their dates.

Among the outstanding campus leaders from Carnall are: Virginia Phipps and Francille Malloch, Mortar Board; Noralee Phariss, University Debate Team; Pat Frey, Sophomore Counselor; and Virginia Bucher, Student Senate.

Mary Ann Davis Hall is a small but active dorm for upper-class women. Friendly and democratic, Davis inspires loyalty and pride among the girls who call it home.

The girls participate in activities from the Marching Hundred to the Student Senate to Blackfriars. Some of the girls took part in Sophomore Council, ABC, AWS Judicial Board, Kappa Delta Pi, Coterie, Colhecon, Elementary Club, FTA, Orchesis, Wesley Players, Tau Beta Sigma, and Student Union Committees.

The Hall sponsors many activities for fellowship among its members. The year started off with a get-acquainted pajama party. During the year came different parties and entertainments. Winter brought a round of sweater hops. During Christmas, the Davis girls held a dinner-dance and, later, a party for underprivileged youngsters. Valentine's Day was an excuse for another party. Soon afterward, the graduation events began, climaxed by the Senior Breakfast.

gregson hall

Gregson Hall, completed in 1948, is the largest men's dorm on campus, housing over 200 men. It contains the cafeteria facilities for all university men's housing.

For the first time, this year, Gregson Hall was divided into two separate houses, William and Sedgewell. The names were derived from the given names of William Sedgewell "Pop" Gregson, former university chaplain. The division was made to facilitate self-government and organization within the dorm.

Residents of William House are governed by a constitution of their own adoption and elect officers each fall to serve the entire year. Varsity athletes dominate Sedgewell House.

Both houses are members of the Men's Interhouse Congress and actively participate in all campus activities. House activities center around the TV Lounge, recreational area, and snack bar.

Buchanan House is the southernmost in a group of four new upperclassmen dormitories located south of Gregson Hall. At its completion last fall, Buchanan House became the second house of this name to have been built on the university campus. The first was a dormitory for men which was built in 1888 and torn down in 1937 to make room for expansion. The house is named for Dr. John L. Buchanan, President of the University from 1894 until 1902. The house provides double rooms for fifty-four men and a single room for a counselor.

The residents of the house are governed by a constitution of their own design and operate in coordination with the Men's Interhouse Congress which regulates all undergraduate dormitories. All officers are elected in the fall for both semesters.

Social events for the residents range from listening parties during football season to all day outings in the spring. The men have shown a great deal of interest in the intramural program throughout the entire year. The interests of the men are varied and cover every phase of campus life.

droke house

Droke House, named for George Wesley Droke, a former Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, is located southwest of Gregson Hall. The construction began during October, 1953, and was completed in January, 1955. Although Droke's first residents moved in on September 12, 1954, the dorm was still under construction. Landscaping of the surrounding grounds is still in progress.

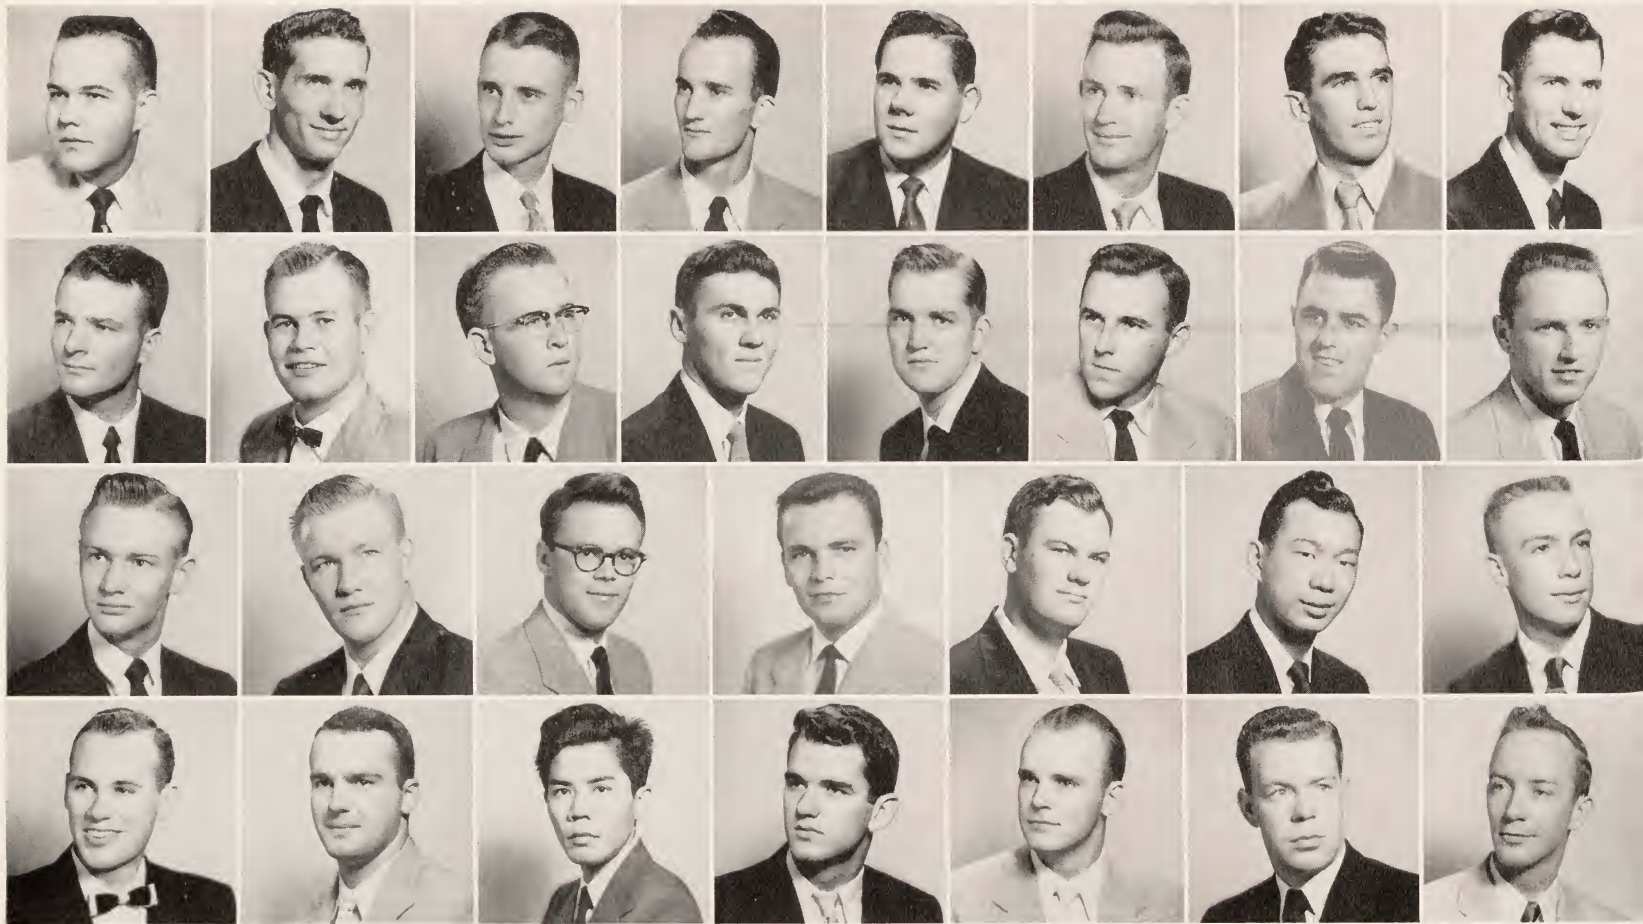

The fifty-five upperclass residents of the House are governed by a house constitution and the constitution of the Men's Inter-house Congress. Officers are elected each September for the entire school year. The residents of Droke House are active in many campus activities.

This is the first year of operation for the men's residence hall, Ripley House. Ripley was named for Dean G. E. Ripley, who was at one time Dean of Men at the University.

The first 50 occupants of Ripley House moved in on November 30, 1954. These new residents of Ripley learned to appreciate the qualities of a new dorm after waiting for the completion of the dorm in old Lloyd Halls.

Some of the more important activities of Ripley House during the school year were the election of officers, adoption of a constitution, and an entry in the University Singfony.

When the Men's Interhouse Congress organized in 1954, Ripley House joined and sent three delegates. Through this organization, Ripley in conjunction with the other dorms have been able to improve the position of the independent men on the Arkansas campus.

Men from Ripley participated in all phases of campus activities, with special emphasis on the Intramural Program.

gladson house

Gladson House started its first year as a residence hall reserved for upperclassmen. Named for a former dean, Gladson is located south of Gregson Hall on the west slope overlooking Terry Village, Razorback Stadium, and the new fieldhouse.

Fifty-four men reside in the Hall. This new dorm has all the touches of modern architecture, including fireproofing and spacious window areas in the lounge, stairs, and student rooms. It also contains a modern laundry room for member's convenience.

The hall has enjoyed various activities and social get-togethers under the able leadership of Charles Long, Counselor, and Poindexter Fiser, President. A relatively small and autocratic dorm, loyalty and fellowship have been inspired among all members.

This year Razorback Hall was overrun by Freshmen, who immediately organized, adopted a constitution, elected their executive officers, and chose a Senate composed of one man from every floor of each section. The group participated in the organizing of the Men's Interhouse Congress in which all three of its representatives served as officers.

During the football season, the Razorback Freshmen turned out for pep rallies and games dressed in their white shirts, red ties, and beanie uniforms and armed with enthusiastic signs. Their spirit kindled an enthusiasm among the entire student body the like of which had not been seen for some years. They continued to be a driving force behind school spirit all year.

Razorback Hall had an enjoyable and successful social calendar including an Open House, Christmas Dance, Valentine Ball, and Spring Social. The hall was also active in intramurals, taking part in all types of sports.

The Girl's 4-H House was founded on the University of Arkansas campus in 1932, the first cooperatively organized house of its kind on any college campus. In 1952, the 4-H girls completed the construction of a new home, a native rock structure, and one of the most attractive houses on the campus. The spirit of cooperation and loyalty which has been fostered in the house has contributed an essential part in attaining the most from college life.

On the social calendar this year were many outstanding events. These included participation in the Harvest Moon Ball, Pollyanna banquet following Pollyanna week during which gifts and small services were exchanged, sweater hops, pajama parties, and an informal Christmas Dance. In April, the 4-H girls celebrated their Founder's Day with a banquet honoring alumni and newly elected house officers.

Many of the 4-H girls are outstanding both on the campus and in 4-H work. Mary Lou Lookingbill was Co-chairman of Religious Emphasis Week, and Margaret Lowe was Assistant Manager of the Agri Students Association.

organized independent women

The purpose of Organized Independent Women is to provide an opportunity for girls not living in organized houses on the campus to engage in a program of intramurals, social events, beauty contests, politics, and campus celebrations.

It seeks to acquaint and integrate off-campus girls (non-members as well as members) with the activities of the campus beyond the scope of its own organization. OIW was founded in 1946.

Several of the girls in OIW have been outstanding in campus organizations. Mona McNutt was President of OIW, on the AWS Executive Board, Kappa Delta Pi President, and a member of Mortar Board and Coterie. Carolyn Selle was chosen as a RAZORBACK Beauty.

DIANE DAMERON, President

After only seven years, Holcombe Hall has been outgrown by the enrolling freshmen women. Although some of the girls live in Scott House, the dorms are organized under a single set of officers.

Starting with an open house during registration, the Holcombe social season was off with a running start. Included on the calendar were the Harvest Moon Ball and the Spring Formal. Sweater hops and after date call parties kept things moving between the big events.

A grand spirit of cooperation and enthusiasm among the girls was evidenced by their willingness to help in any way they might be needed, whether it be building floats, putting on skits, or helping to clean up after the fun was over.

Learning to participate in the activities of the university was the first lesson for the Holcombe girls. Working on Homecoming, committees, and Gaebale, the freshmen women took part in every phase of campus life.

All the activities were under the guidance of Mrs. Bernice Welch, house mother, and Diane Dameron, President.

Screams and giggles and wide-eyed amazement . . . some sorority girls found it hard to restrain themselves around rushees.

Hail Caesar! The Kappas made use of their new side porch.

tea and cookies...

The rushees heard all about the Delta Gamma social program.

The Kappas moved indoors to rush during the night parties.

These little Indians whooped it up for Tri-Delt.

Eve told the girls how she used to wear a Kappa pledge pin on her fig leaf.

The Pi Phi rush skit was centered around aluminum foil and legs.

Cigarettes, tired smiles, and sore throats were outstanding features of fall rush.

take care of my little girl

The great wonder of Rush Week is how the girls manage to maintain an atmosphere of breathless excitement for five days. After the afternoon and night parties, the clapping and singing, the long fraternity meetings, and the short hours of sleep, it's remarkable that the girls can even be civil to the rushees during the latter part of the week.

The Zetas poured on the charm in the living room.

The Delta Gammas entertained the rushees with a pajama party.

september affair...

The vicious grins . . . pumping handshakes . . . thumping backslaps . . . and the frantic and furtive squint at the name-card . . . rush week sometimes leaves fraternities completely enervated for the rest of the year . . . only to recover again in September for the big push . . . "It's more than a house, son, it's a way of life."

Informality was the keynote at ATO rush.

Dave Pryor entertained rushees and SAE brothers with anecdotes about summer politics.

The PiKAs ended their rush parties with a jam session.

The Sigma Nus pulled off their coats and dragged their striped chairs onto the patio.

The fraternities gathered in front of the Union to wait for their new pledges.

To the rushees, Rush Week is just a jumble of unconnected faces and names and confusing facts and figures. Sometimes he wonders if the facts are actually facts . . . most of the time he has good reason to wonder. If he believes everything he hears, he will end up with the conclusion that there are sixteen best fraternities on the campus.

The Sigma Chis tried some serious rushing before their skit began.

Almost everyone enjoyed the rush parties, but then there were always one or two . . .

the propaganda machines

In order to appeal to the rushee, every fraternity used a distinctive approach, but they were only variations to the time-honored system. It took only a few days for the rushees to learn that every fraternity had "unbreakable bonds of brotherhood," "untold contacts over the state," and "the most prominent social program on the campus."

Pipes were standard equipment for the Acacia parties.

Rush was a confusing mixture of statistics and salesmanship.

The Lambda Chi skit told of college life in Lower Slobbovia.

The Kappa Sig show involved Jim Brandon's interviewing such dignitaries as Orval Faubus and Guy Jones.

frat frat...

The fraternity rush skit occupies a definite but obscure spot in American literature . . . a novel outlet for creative ability and originality . . . somewhat similar to folk lore in that most themes are handed down from year to year (in story and song) . . . never printed. The rush skits are not exactly geared to a genteel audience, but then, who ever saw a genteel rushee?

Jack Young presides over IFC, the sounding board for fraternity problems.

interfraternity council

The I.F.C. coordinates the efforts of each fraternity towards making a just policy and an extensive Rushing Program. Though each fraternity functions independently of the others, through the Council they mediate any differences that might occur among the Greek letter fraternities of the campus, look for solutions to any interfraternity problem, and promote the University of Arkansas.

These monthly meetings help strengthen interfraternity relations and therefore strengthen the University. Through the cooperation in the I.F.C. the fraternities are able to enjoy fairness in competition and continued growth and fraternal spirit.

The Panhellenic Council is an Advisory-Governing Board established on every campus where there are two or more national sororities. Our local council is an active organization which serves as a channel through which the administration may work with the sororities. The group stresses good scholarship and awards a cup to the pledge class each year which makes the highest grade point.

The Acacias relax after a long day on the hill.

FRANK HARRISON, President

Acacia at Arkansas celebrated its fourth year as a chartered fraternity at the University this spring. The fraternity house is located at 340 Arkansas Avenue, and the chapter has some twenty-nine active members.

Founded by a group of Master Masons in 1904 at the University of Michigan as a social fraternity, it was given its name as a symbol of the everlasting—the Acacia, an eastern evergreen. The fraternity stresses its strong ties with Masonry and Masonic organizations.

Acacia is a charter member of the National Interfraternity Conference, and has forty-one active chapters and some 22,000 members, distributed principally throughout the larger universities in the United States. The Fraternity stresses qualities of leadership, scholarship, and character in its members and the Arkansas chapter members have actively participated in campus activities, especially in student government, publications, military and student entertainment.

Concentrating on its campus social and scholastic life, the Arkansas Chapter has maintained a position near the top of the list of local fraternities in both, as well as a solid position in relation to the national fraternity.

Though small and one of the youngest chapters on this campus, Acacia has established itself well with its social functions many of which have become annual events.

Alpha Gamma Rho was founded at Ohio State University on October 10, 1904. The national fraternity was born from the union of Alpha Gamma Rho at Ohio State and Delta Rho Sigma at the University of Illinois. On a national scale, the fraternity is made up of thirty-three chapters located in all sections of the United States.

Here on the campus, the AGR Club was first organized in the early thirties. In 1934, it became the thirty-third chapter of Alpha Gamma Rho Fraternity.

AGR activities for the fall are highlighted by the annual "Rooster Day Dance". The spring social calendar is topped off with the "Pink Rose Formal". Other than these two dances, we have numerous house parties and outings. All these activities are chaperoned by our Housemother, Mrs. Bob Moore.

Many AGR Alumni are prominent in agricultural related fields. They occupy key positions in the United States Department of Agriculture and in State Agricultural Colleges. A large number of the leaders in the Farm Bureau, the Grange, and other agricultural organizations hold membership in Alpha Gamma Rho. These leaders in agriculture are shining examples of the purpose of Alpha Gamma Rho, "To make better men and through them a broader and better agriculture."

DON MANLEY, President

Alpha Tau Omega was the first Greek letter fraternity organized after the Civil War. It was founded at Richmond, Virginia, on September 11, 1865, and its first chapter was established at the Virginia Military Institute at Lexington, Virginia.

Its founders were three young Confederate soldiers. Their prime object was to restore the Union, to unite fraternally the young men of the South with those of the North and to foster a Christian brotherhood dedicated to the task of achieving and cherishing permanent peace. They found their inspiration in the sentiment: "No North, No South, No East, No West."

Alpha Xi of Alpha Tau Omega was established on the University campus in 1882. This made it the first national fraternity on the campus. Although forced to go inactive shortly afterwards, it was reinstalled March 31, 1950.

The fraternity colors are blue and gold, and the white tea rose is the flower.

At the beginning of the second semester the ATOs moved nearer the campus, taking the house that had formerly belonged to the Sig Alphas.

Sixty years ago on April 5, 1895, four University of Arkansas coeds met at the home of Dr. Charles Richardson and founded what is now the largest women's fraternity with 118 chapters, Chi Omega. The girls were Ina May Boles, Marie Vincenheller, Alice Carry Simonds, and Hobelle Holcombe.

Miss Holcombe was one of the first Deans of Women of the University and Holcombe Hall is named in her honor. Included in the fraternity's program on this campus is the annual Jobelle Holcombe Award, given to a student excelling in English.

Gaebale's Varsity and Beauty Shows, pep rallies, AWS festivals are all held in the Chi Omega Greek Theatre. The open air theatre was given to the University by national Chi Omega in recognition of the mother chapter of the fraternity.

"Hellenic Culture and Christian Ideals" is Chi Omega's Open Declaration. Realizing it, the fraternity has established the Service Fund Studies and the National Achievement Award. The National Achievement Award is a gold medal which is presented annually to a woman outstanding in service contributions to her country.

This Spring, in honor of her 60th anniversary, Chi Omega held a festival attended by 12 close chapters and several national officers.

ChiO was proud of her several outstanding members this year. In the senior class, four seniors were tapped for Mortar Board and three were named to Who's Who. ChiO also had both AFROTC and ROTC honorary colonels and several other honors.

This is the year for "Firesides", district conclaves of ChiO. It is a training school for new officers and also enables the girls to become better acquainted with sisters in the surrounding chapters.

What is sorority life without a bridge game going?

JEANNE JAMELL, President

On a cold November night at Boston University, Sarah Ida Shaw and her friend Eleanor Dorcas Pond vowed to found a society that would be kind to all and think more of a girl's inner self and character than of her personal appearance. Thus Delta Delta Delta was founded on Thanksgiving Eve in 1888. The crescent moon and three bright stars which shone so clearly on the Boston Common that night were the inspiration for the Tri Delta pin worn today by thousands of coeds from coast to coast.

Delta Delta Delta today has 96 collegiate chapters, 220 alumnae organizations, and over 50,000 members. It has the distinction of not only being one of the six founders of the National Panhellenic, being represented at every inter-sorority gathering since then, but also of being the first sorority to become international, having chapters in Nova Scotia, Canada, and Hawaii.

The University of Arkansas chapter, Delta Iota, was founded in 1910, and each year it joins with the other Tri Delt chapters in supporting the philanthropic service, a service which is devoted principally to scholarships for women in America and Canadian Universities.

Delta Gamma was founded at Lewis School, Oxford, Mississippi, in 1874. The society was based on the fundamentals of high ideals and personal standards. The three founders were Eva Webb Dodd, Anna Boyd Ellington, and Mary Comfort Leonard.

The Delta Gamma Anchor was designed in 1879 by Corrine Miller, and in 1883, bronze, pink and blue were chosen the official colors. Two years later the cream colored rose was adopted as the flower of the fraternity.

Through the initiation of one man, Mr. George Banta, who established a Delta Gamma chapter at Franklin College his fraternity, Phi Delta Theta, has traditionally become Delta Gamma's brother fraternity.

Alpha Omega of Delta Gamma was founded on the campus of the University of Arkansas in 1930. The chapter house was the first to be constructed on this campus, and was the first step in Alpha Omega's continual growth.

Eighty collegiate chapters and two hundred and twelve alumnae groups are joined in the Delta Gamma Fraternity today. DG was one of the first six founders of National Panhellenic.

Delta Gamma places importance on campus activities and in recognition for its contributions. They captured the first place trophy in the 1954 "Singfony". The Delta Gamma national project is Sight Conservation and Aid to the Blind.

Some highlights of the Delta Gamma social calendar are the spaghetti supper for the football team, Christmas Party, Cookie Shines at date call, Spring Formal, and May Outing.

Kappa Alpha Order was founded in 1865 at Washington College, now Washington and Lee, in Lexington, Virginia. The founders, influenced by their college president and war-time leader, General Robert E. Lee, determined to carry on the cherished Southern ideals of chivalry and honor.

KA extends from coast to coast, with all of its chapters below the Mason-Dixon Line. Though Kappa Alpha Order is a southern fraternity of southern traditions, its members come from all parts of the nation to band together to perpetuate ideas of universal worth and merit. Many KA alumni affiliate with alumni chapters which are active from New York to San Francisco.

Alpha Omicron chapter was established on the Arkansas campus in 1895, making KA one of the oldest fraternities at the university.

Fall social activities are highlighted by the hilarious Pigalle Party. May brings the mammoth Kappa Alpha Dixie Ball, a traditional celebration of the Old South. After wiring the president that it is seceding from the Union, southern gentlemen and Confederate soldiers seize control of the city of Fayetteville.

The home of Southern Gentlemen claims many prominent alumni. Among the outstanding KA brothers are: George Marshall, former Secretary of State; J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the FBI; Randolph Scott, movie star; and Francis Cherry, former Governor of Arkansas.

Alpha, the first chapter of Kappa Kappa Gamma, was founded October 13, 1870, by six college women at Monmouth College, Monmouth, Illinois. At the present time there is a total membership of 50,000 women. Kappa Kappa Gamma has 82 active chapters with 4,500 undergraduate members. Kappa's organized branches are spread over the United States and Canada, and alumnae associations are found in the territory of Hawaii and in London, England.

Among some of Kappa's national services are undergraduate scholarships, graduate fellowships, and foreign fellowships.

On April 9, 1925, Gamma Nu chapter was installed on the University of Arkansas campus. This year some of the outstanding Kappas were: Betty Lou Ayers and Shirley Hardy, Mortar Board; Julie Owen, AWS treasurer and cheerleader; Anne Easley, Honorary Lt. Colonel of the AFROTC; Ellen Tye, chairman of the AWS Queens committee.

The difference that a coat of paint can make was the chief topic of conversation in the Kappa House this fall, when they returned to a house newly painted and redecorated inside and out.

Among the Kappa social events are the sweater hop and dinner honoring the pledges; banquet honoring the Razorback football team; faculty tea; spring outing; and the annual spring formal.

Casual living at the Kappa Sigma house.

Xi Chapter of Kappa Sigma was established on the University campus in 1890 by Dr. Charles Richardson, a Kappa Sigma from Emory and Henry University. Dr. Richardson, besides founding Xi Chapter, was also instrumental in bringing to the campus several other national fraternities; he was a founder of Chi Omega sorority in 1892.

Dr. Richardson might well be called the father of the fraternity system at Arkansas; the effects of his work can be found throughout the campus, and principally in his own fraternity, Kappa Sigma. Now in its sixty-fifth year, Kappa Sigma has literally grown up with the University.

Tremendous growth followed World War II, resulting in an expansion of fraternity facilities to their present size. Xi Chapter has the distinction of living in the largest fraternity house in the world, a title yet to be disputed. Its many members' activities are scattered to include every facet of University life. Among its leaders are Bob Wright, President of IFC; Tony Boyett, President of the Student Bar Association; Jim Brandon, editor of the Student Directory-A Book; George Walker and Jerry McFadden, two mainstays of the Razorback Cotton Bowl team; and G. W. Lookadoo, the President of the Freshman Class. Xi Chapter has five student senators, two Phi Beta Kappas, officers in ODK and Blue Key, and men in key positions on student publications, indicative of its influence in campus affairs.

Socially, the calendar is sprinkled with costume parties, two formals a year, house parties, and open houses. Xi Chapter is also a perennial contender in intramural athletics, which is another tribute to its well-rounded scope of activities. The functions of Xi Chapter all point to the common goal of a greater University.

Must be a wild tale that Lynn Quillin is relating at this Lambda Chi bull session.

Success is the word which best describes the Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity and Gamma Chi Chapter. Lambda Chi Alpha is one of the youngest of college fraternities and yet has grown from its founding at Boston University in Boston, Massachusetts, to 149 active chapters throughout the United States and Canada with over 55,000 wearing the Cross and Crescent. Lambda Chi Alpha is young, vigorous, enterprising, and has shown remarkable development and growth since its founding in 1909. It is the largest of all college fraternities. While the youngest of the leading fraternities, it is recognized everywhere as a progressive leader. It was among the first to have a full time administrative secretary, standard accounting, traveling secretaries, a pledge manual, owned headquarters building, and a full time alumni secretary. Present plans call for a new, modern headquarters building in Indianapolis, Indiana.

Gamma Chi of Lambda Chi Alpha was installed on this campus in 1925 and since that time has developed into one of the campus leaders and has a thoroughly modern colonial home overlooking the stadium.

Highlights of Gamma Chi's social year are the Christmas Formal, the famous Alphatraz Party, and the traditional Black and White Formal, which is held each spring close to Founder's Day. At this dance, the Crescent Girl of the year is announced.

Gamma Chi has many men in key organizations: Omicron Delta Kappa, Blue Key, Alpha Kappa Psi, and Student Senate committees. In intramurals, Lambda Chi is always among the leaders in all phases.

Lambda Chi Alpha stresses brotherhood, one of the ideals upon which it was founded. The Fraternity is interested not only in the development of men during their college years, but also satisfaction to all members . . . for life. No matter what his life work, no matter where he may live, a Lambda Chi will find friendship and assistance of men with similar ideals and interest . . . because of the common bond of Lambda Chi Alpha.

The Centennial Chapter of Phi Delta Theta, Arkansas Alpha, was installed on the Arkansas campus in 1948, one hundred years after the founding of the fraternity. Phi Delta Theta is the oldest national fraternity represented at the university. Nationally, Phi Delt has over 70,000 members and 118 chapters.

Believing that a small group provides closer bonds of friendship, Arkansas Alpha maintains an approximate membership of fifty men.

The Phis are well known for their parties. The high points of the social season for the fraternity are the She Delta Theta half formal in the fall and the Buccaneer's Ball in the spring. Many informal dances are held in the chapter house at 410 Arkansas Avenue . . . just across the street from the campus. Several outings add variety to the chapter social life.

Phis are active in campus organizations. Aubert Martin and Gordon Gates are members of Omicron Delta Kappa. Graham Sudbury is president of the Civic Club and Blue Key. Davis Duty is the junior senator from Arts and Sciences and a member of ODK. Al Miller is president of the Southwestern Section of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers. Norm Smith is co-captain of the varsity basketball team. On the intramural scene, Jack Evans has appeared on the all-star football team for the past four years. The Phis have been top contenders for the intramural sweepstakes ever since their founding and this year are in the top three.

Arkansas Alpha is one of the 102 active chapters of Pi Beta Phi with 56,642 members which have sprung from the chapter founded April 28, 1867, at Monmouth College, Monmouth, Illinois. This founding chapter was the beginning of the first national college fraternity for women.

Arkansas Alpha received its charter December 29, 1909, and has grown from a charter membership of 28 to over 900 today.

Pi Beta Phi's have always recognized the value of philanthropic service and this recognition is manifested in the Pi Beta Phi Settlement School at Gatlinburg, Tennessee. The Settlement School was founded for the purpose of furthering the education of those living in the remote areas of the mountains in Tennessee. It has revived the old arts and crafts of the area and maintains twelve grades of school and a hospital to serve the needs of the isolated mountain families.

Another important aspect of fraternity life carried out by Pi Beta Phi is active participation in campus affairs. This year Betty Brown served as Secretary of the Student Body and with Sue Shepherd is a member of Mortar Board. Kay Wells was a member of the AWS Judicial Board and a Holcombe counselor. Pat Parnell was Honorary Lt. Colonel of the Army ROTC. Betty Brown was the Kappa Alpha Rose and Charlotte Smith was the Lambda Chi Alpha Crescent Girl. Carolyn Carson and Ruth Hale were members of Kappa Delta Pi; Carole Summers, Sigma Alpha Iota; Susie Johnson, Fay Vandivort, and Joyce Haskew, Colhecon; and Molly McAmis is Society Editor of the "Traveler."

Arkansas Alpha's social activities are many and varied. Among those scheduled for this year are the fall and spring outings, the Christmas Formal, the annual Faculty Tea, an informal supper honoring the football team and a dinner-dance honoring the pledges. Exchange dinners and open houses are held throughout the year.

GEORGE BALLARD, President

The Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity was founded on March 1, 1868, at the University of Virginia by a group of Confederate veterans. Since its founding, Pi Kappa Alpha has grown to a national fraternity of 116 chapters throughout the country. The fraternity's progress is exemplified by the opening of her quarter-million dollar national headquarters building in Memphis, Tennessee, this past summer.

Alpha Zeta chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha celebrated its Golden Anniversary last fall, in commemoration of their founding on November 2, 1904. National Executive Secretary Robert Lynn spoke at the banquet honoring the occasion.

Pi Kappa Alpha's Dream Girl Formal was a standout of the campus social season. Miss Gail Elliot, Kappa Kappa Gamma, was selected as the fraternity's "Dream Girl," and was presented at intermission of the dance. Tex Beneke and his orchestra provided the music for the reception and dance. Another social highlight was the annual Quo Vadis costume party, held at the chapter house in October.

The chapter is proud of its officers, both outstanding campus and fraternity leaders. George Ballard, fall president, is a past president of Theta Tau, and a member of Blue Key, Student Senate, Engineering Council, and Tau Beta Pi, honorary engineering fraternity. George Keeter was also a Blue Key member, served as vice-president of the Interfraternity Council and Senior Class of Business School, and as Singfony director, and was in the Civic Club and Alpha Kappa Psi.

Mrs. Walter Sorrells, the popular PiKA housemother, better known about the campus as "Popo," was named "Dream Girl for Always" by the chapter. Much of Alpha Zeta's success hinges on the patient counselling and guidance of the lovable "Popo."

Sigma Alpha Epsilon, the first Southern fraternity, was founded on March 9, 1856, at the University of Alabama by a group of eight close friends. Under the guidance of these men it grew until today the fraternity is one of the largest in the nation with 136 chapters in 46 states and over 87,000 initiates.

National headquarters for the fraternity is the Levere Memorial Temple at Evanston, Illinois. Sigma Alpha Epsilon was the first fraternity to build its own national headquarters. The building is named for a great fraternity leader, William C. Levere.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon was founded on the campus by George Bundling, July 8, 1894, with the assistance of James Head, a student here at the time. Since that date SAE has grown continually at Arkansas.

Alpha Upsilon's social life is centered around formals in addition to the Honky Tonk, Valentine Dinner and Dance, and informal house parties.

This was a great year for Arkansas Alph's. At Homecoming, the Sig Alph's dedicated their new $250,000 colonial home on Stadium Drive. The new chapter house is one of the largest and finest on the Arkansas campus.

The Alph's are proud of the leadership their men have shown in campus affairs: Curtis Shipley was President of Blue Key and President of the Commerce Guild; Dave Pryor was Editor of the "Guild Ticker" and a member of the Student Senate.

A little "atmosphere" for the Gold Rush Party.

The founding of the Sigma Chi Fraternity took place at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, on June 28, 1855. The fraternity is a member of the famous "Miami Triad" which consists of Beta Theta Pi, Phi Delta Theta, and Sigma Chi. Since its founding, Sigma Chi has grown to one of the strongest fraternities in America. It is also one of the largest with members in 124 chapters located throughout the United States and Canada.

Omega Omega of the University of Arkansas came into being in 1905 from a chartering group known as the Indian Club. The chapter house, located on the corner of Maple and Vandeventer Streets, is a large buff brick colonial-type structure.

Highlights among the many social activities of Omega Omega are the annual Gold Rush Party and Sweetheart Formal. Miss Mary Noel Kenny served as Sweetheart of Sigma Chi during the 1954-55 school year.

The Sig's are very active in campus activities and have many leaders on the hill. Fred Livingston was vice-president of Associated Students; Allen Venner edited the "Arkansas Engineer"; Lee Bodenhamer was treasurer of Business School, and Mike Shaw and Don Cox were presidents of the Junior and Senior Business Classes, respectively. Many other Sigs held offices also.

This year, Sigma Chi is celebrating its 100th anniversary and Omega Omega is celebrating its golden anniversary. In honor of this, Omega Omega held a conclave in March which embraced most of the chapters in the South. The two main events of the weekend were the "Sigfest" held on Friday night and the banquet and dance Saturday night.

A new magazine has a way of attracting a crowd.

Sigma Nu was founded on January 1, 1869, at the Virginia Military Institute by three cadets—James Frank Hopkins, Greenfield Quarles, and James McIlvaine Riley. On the Rock of Sigma Nu, these men founded a society which would inculcate honor and mutually benefit its members. The following year, many of the cadet corps offices were held by wearers of the White Star, and Sigma Nu's beginning was auspicious. In the 86 years since, Sigma Nu has grown to 119 chapters and 80,000 men extending across the nation.

Gamma Upsilon chapter was founded on the University of Arkansas campus in 1904. This year marks the Golden Anniversary. Since we are part of an educational institution, our main concern is the scholastic standing of each member and the chapter has been among the top leaders in social fraternity scholarship ratings.

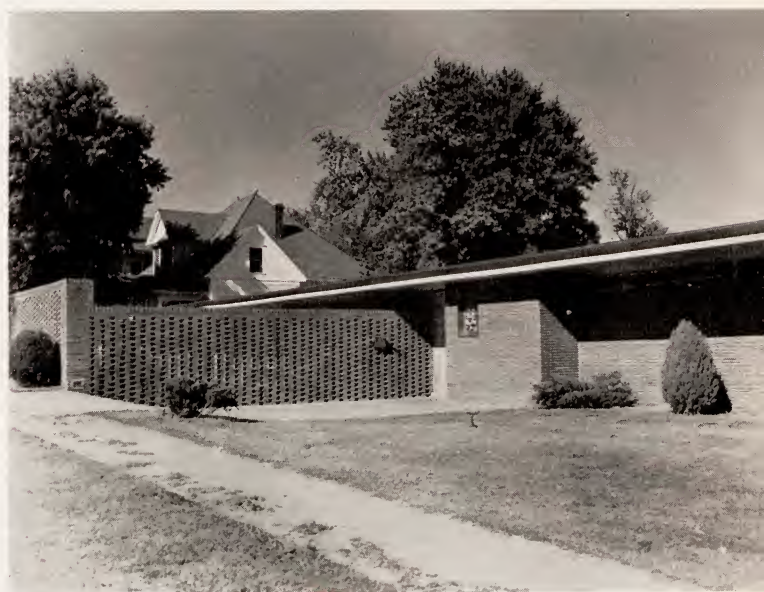

On the intramural sports field, Sigma Nu has taken home many first place trophies in previous years.

Socially, Sigma Nu is represented on the campus by a variety of functions. The annual Sadie Hawkins party and dance was started 16 years ago, and has since then spread nationally. The Christmas party with its "crazy gifts" is always looked forward to. The outstanding Sigma Nu event comes each spring with the White Rose Formal. This affair has all the beauty of the flower for which it is named. Many costume and house parties are held throughout the year.

For the past four years, Sigma Nu has held its own in competition for float or house decorations at the Homecoming activities, winning a first place trophy for four consecutive years.

Saturday morning, the time for relaxing.

LARRY GIRARD, President

Upsilon Chapter of Theta Tau, a national professional engineering fraternity, was established on the University campus on April 7, 1928. Since this time Upsilon Chapter has been striving to perform the two-fold purpose of Theta Tau—to develop and maintain a high standard of professional interest among its members, and to unite them in a strong bond of fraternal fellowship.

Theta Tau is the largest professional engineering fraternity in the country, having 24 chapters and a membership of 15,000.

Many Theta Tau's are found among the leaders on the campus: George Ballard, past Senator and President of PiKA; Bob Jenkins, Student Body President and Air Force Cadet Colonel; Phil Snedecor, Senator; Bill Cravens, Senator; Larry Girard, President of IRE and AIEE; Mike Lyle, President of the Engineering Council and President of AIEE; Allen Venner, Editor of the Arkansas Engineer.

The social functions of the fraternity include a Founder's Day Banquet, a Christmas Party, and the annual spring outing.

Among the more outstanding alums of the Upsilon Chapter are: Clark Hungerford, President of the St. Louis-San Francisco Railroad, and Henry Oldham, Vice-President of the Southern Union Gas Company.

Realizing the shortage of engineers in the United States, Theta Tau has sponsored programs to interest high school students in Engineering as their future profession.

B. J. Wolford entertains a group of Zeta music lovers.

Epsilon chapter of Zeta Tau Alpha came to the campus of the University of Arkansas in the era of the Gibson Girl and the shirt-waist dress. That was in 1903, and Epsilon was Zeta's first chapter to be founded west of the Mississippi River, and the fifth to be established nationally. The first Zeta shield was worn by a group of young college women at Longwood College, Farmville, Virginia, in 1897.

Over the last half century the tradition of friendliness and leadership has become the core of Zeta Tau Alpha. The activities and honors which have come to the big white Southern Colonial on Oakland Avenue are diverse. Since 1954 was a big year for the Arkansas Razorbacks and school spirit, Zetas were particularly thrilled to win first place for their Homecoming House decorations. Then Rozan Carter was chosen Homecoming Queen and LaRee Lloyd was a maid to the Homecoming Court. Rozan also represented the University at the Cotton Bowl on New Year's Day in Dallas, Texas, when she reigned as "Queen of the Cotton Bowl." She was also second place runner-up for the title of "Miss University of Arkansas" for this year.

Ruth Chambers served as Secretary of the A.W.S., and Mary Lou Morris was president of Panhellenic. The Sigma Nu's chose Lyda Crittenden for their "White Rose", and she was also selected as army sponsor. Ann Chambers was given the title of honorary Lt. Colonel. Jo Frances Wagner was selected by the Press Club to be "Miss Arkansas Traveler." Frances Hook was a member of Mortar Board and selected for "Who's Who."

The Farmhouse is one of the newer fraternities on the campus, having been recognized by the university on January 6, 1950. The Farmhouse received its charter October 2, 1954, and is at the present one of the fourteen chapters of the national Farmhouse Fraternity.

The Farmhouse Fraternity was founded at the University of Missouri on April 15, 1905. Since that time the fraternity has grown to fourteen chapters and six clubs in the nations major agricultural colleges. There are now over 6,000 members and alumni in the U. S. and several foreign countries.

The fraternity's major interest and activities are in the field of agriculture. Membership is restricted to those whose course of study leads to a degree in Agriculture. Throughout its existence the Farmhouse has made fulfillment of its motto, "Builders of Men" its primary objective. A full program emphasizes scholarship, good conduct, and participation in the many activities of campus life. The fraternity is very proud of the fact that its scholarship rating has been the highest of the campus for the past five semesters with the exception of the fall semester of 1953. The national organization leads all other fraternities in the United States in scholarship.

The fraternity is looking forward to further progress in the future both here on the campus of the university and on other campuses throughout the United States.

Through the years Sigma Phi Epsilon has become known as "The Fraternity with a Heart." Indeed, the distinctive black heart pin worn by generations of Sig Eps is symbolic of the spirit and ideals which helped to carry the twelve original founders through their first few adverse years.

Sigma Phi Epsilon was founded at Richmond College, Richmond, Virginia, at a time when large national fraternities dominated the campus. From this unpretentious beginning in 1901, the fraternity has built its membership to 45,000 Sig Eps through 131 chapters and has taken its place among the great national Greek Letter Fraternities.

The traveling secretary plan was originated and expanded to the present system by Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Arkansas chapter was among the first to petition for a charter, and become a member of the national Sig Ep brotherhood in 1907. Since then, the local chapter has built traditions along with the national organization.

At Arkansas the life of a Sig Ep is a full one. Besides intramural sports and other school functions, social events such as the Golden Heart Formal and Spring Outing, as well as the Hallowe'en Masquerade, are looked forward to by each Sig Ep.

The Arkansas Chapter residence at 753 West Dickson shares one thing with all other chapter houses across the United States—the traditional red door. Behind these doors are men with a common purpose, preserving and furthering the traditions that have built Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Sigma Pi Fraternity was founded February 26, 1897, at Vincennes University in Indiana by four men who were interested in promoting brotherhood, culture, and a high degree of excellence at their university. Sigma Pi is the oldest fraternity originating west of the Ohio River with the exception of the Miami Triad.

Sigma Pi has over 50 active chapters in the United States, and its membership totals 13,631 men. The Sigma Pi chapters are located in almost every state, including two chapters in the state of Arkansas. Alpha Sigma chapter received its charter in April, 1948.

The Sigma Pi badge is a Greek cross of gold. The arms of the cross display respectively a scroll, a balance, a wreath, and ten stars arranged as a perfect triangle. The pledge pin is lavender and white and is shaped like a shield of the coat of arms. The fraternity colors are lavender and white, while the flower is the lavender orchid. The Orchid Ball is the fraternity's annual spring formal. Another important day in the life of a Sigma Pi, is the annual Founder's Day observance.

Our activities on the campus are three fold, scholarship, social, and intramural. Scholarships is stressed to round out a balanced social program, which includes house dances, picnics, and other social events. Sigma Pi participates in all phases of the intramural program.

A fellowship of kindered minds united in brotherhood to promote scholarship, advance truth and justice, encourage chivalry, and diffuse culture—this is Sigma Pi.

Zeta Beta Tau was founded by a group of college men in New York City, December 29, 1898. Dr. Richard J. H. Gottheil of Columbia University inspired the founding. Zeta Beta Tau, senior member of the National Interfraternity Conference since 1912, was the oldest and largest college fraternity for Jewish men. In 1954, Zeta Beta Tau joined the ranks of those who realize that history is temporal and in a constant state of flux. At the National Convention it was decided that our ritual had been anachronistic and should be improved to one which would be non-discriminatory. The members of Beta Kappa feel that the change in ritual will serve to enfranchise the chapter and the fraternity in the sense that we will be free of prejudices.

The fraternity is governed by a Supreme Council with headquarters at its national office in New York City. The official publication is the "Zeta Beta Tau Quarterly." Other publications include a membership directory, ZBT songbook, and the Manual for Chapter Administration.

The fraternity has forty-seven active chapters throughout the United States and Canada, with a total membership of over 12,000.

Although Zeta Beta Tau has only recently been installed at the University of Arkansas as the Beta Kappa Chapter, it had for several years functioned as a local colony known as Beta Tau. Since its installation on April 15, 1950, the chapter has continued to grow and expand its activities. The chapter house is located at 527 Storer Street.

The long walk home is an integral part of the date itself.

Dear Ed,

How about inserting an ad in some college year books and let's see if we can't interest some of the graduates in our work down here.

As you know, we are always on the lookout for an alert graduate that will fit in with The Crossett Company. Too darn many of them are leaving the state just because they aren't aware of the opportunities here. So let's have the ad point out that industry here in Arkansas is always ready to lend a hand in helping graduates find good jobs.

We might also stress some of our employees' benefits such as group insurance, retirement plan, etc. Tell them we employ around 2,000 persons.

Let's also give them a little info about The Crossett Company, such as, that it's been doing business for more than 50 years, that we are a leading manufacturer of lumber, paper and wood chemicals. And don't forget to mention our forest management program that will mean jobs from now on.

Better tell them something about Crossett, too. Let them know we have one of the finest school systems in the state, an excellent hospital, plenty of churches, low crime rate, low taxes, and lots of recreation facilities.

Don't oversell it however. Just let them know that The Crossett Company is a darn good employer and that we'd like to see applications from any graduate that is interested.

I'll look forward to seeing proofs.

Best personal regards
Joe

“or, what’s a heaven for”

“A man’s reach should exceed his grasp, or what’s a heaven for.”

How better can you sum up a man’s ambition . . . his striving for success than those few lines. We at Fairbanks-Morse are constantly reaching ahead, individually and collectively . . . seeking those new fields to conquer. For we earnestly believe that the man, or the company, who stands still, soon goes backward!

In the field of power, water supply and irrigation, transportation, electricity, weighing instruments, in fact in any field that affects the life of home, farm and industry, Fairbanks-Morse is constantly seeking new and better ways to assist the forward progress of man.

If you are of that select group “whose reach exceeds its grasp,” we believe you will find Fairbanks-Morse the important step in your future in selling, engineering, production, accounting or research and development. We would like to discuss it with you.
